For annual Christmas parade

Santa to arrive in Washington C.H. Saturday

From queens to clowns, books to bands, and Santa Claus to the Christ Child, the 1976 Fayette County Christmas parade will offer something for everyone.

Scheduled to step out onto Columbus Avenue at 2 p.m. Saturday, the annual parade will a panorama of Christmas among its 60 units. To each person in the community Christmas means something different, and the parade will attempt to portray the many facets of the Yuletide season.

Saturday's weather forecast is encouraging for parade participants and viewers alike considering the recent cold spell. Temperatures are expected to move out of the teens to the high 30s with only a 20 per cent chance of precipitation.

Come rain, snow or cold, old St. Nick has agreed to once again visit Washington C.H. He will arrive on a float at the end of the parade and will take gift requests from children on the steps of the Fayette County Courthouse immediately following the parade.

Preceding the jolly gift-giver in the parade will be six floats entered by area churches.

Immediately behind the law enforcement escort vehicles and a color guard which head the parade will come grand marshal Joseph Peters, a Washington C.H. civic leader for many years. Although few area youngsters recognize the name, hundreds each year enjoy the Little League baseball program he helped initiate.

Closely following the grand marshal will be the Christmas royalty, a trio of young ladies who reign over the 1976 festivities. Snow Queen Pam Doyle, Miss Snow Princess Laurie Merritt and Little Miss Snow Princess Jackie Selig will ride a float sponsored by the Roller Haven skating rink.

A parade without marching bands would simply not be a parade, and three local bands will bring sounds of Christmas. Participating will be the Washington Senior High School, the Miami Trace High School, and the Washington C.H. Middle School marching bands.

Also competing for the crowd's undivided attention will be 13 commercial and 14 homemade floats. Six of the floats will be awarded $350 in cash prizes during the judging prior to the parade.

Along with the floats the parade will feature 12 marching units varying in size from six to 60 members. Led by veteran participant Johnny Peters, six clowns will journey the parade route distributing candy to young spectators along the way.

Prior to the parade and while waiting to visit Santa Claus afterward, parents are urged to take their children to the Carnegie Public Library bookmobile which will be parked along Main Street near Court Street.

Participants are reminded by the Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce to bring their lineup charts with them when the parade begins forming at 12 noon. Marching units will line up on Yeoman Street while floats will assemble on Willard Street. Both the streets will be closed to traffic Saturday afternoon and residents are asked not to park automobiles along the curb.

Parents should drop children off on Washington Avenue between Worley and McElwain streets or at the Washington Senior High School parking lot.

The parade's two columns will form one at Delaware Street and Columbus Avenue and proceed west on Court Street. As the parade draws to an end, marching units will turn left from Court Street onto Circle Avenue and march to McHenry Field. Floats will continue on Leesburg Avenue to the rear parking area at the Fayette County Fairgrounds.

Chiaramonte, Dollison in posts

Cook, Andrews replaced

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Highway Safety Director Donald D. Cook and Bureau of Motor Vehicle Registrar Curtis Andrews, who have been feuding over job performance, have been reassigned new positions by Gov. James A. Rhodes.

In their places, the governor today appointed retired Highway Patrol Supt. Robert M. Chiaramonte to replace Cook as director of the Department of Highway Safety and Dean L. Dollison to take Andrews' job as registrar of the motor vehicles.

Cook becomes project director of Operation Crime Alert and the Organized Crime Prevention Council. Andrews becomes deputy director for administration of the Ohio Department of Transportation.

The changes will be effective Monday.

Chiaramonte currently is project director of Ohio Crime Alert so it appeared he and Cook would trade jobs.

Cook last week suspended Andrews after making several departmental accusations against him.

Cook had accused Andrews of arbitrarily shutting off access to a law enforcement data gathering system daily after 5 p.m. and on weekends without his approval. He also said Andrews sought to impede a Highway Patrol investigation into fund shortages among deputy registrars and that he failed to take action against thousands of Ohio drivers who are driving after having had their licenses suspended.

Andrews said he answered all the charges made against him. He would not give details.

Rhodes, out of the state at the time, rescinded the suspension and ordered his aides to investigate the dispute.

Cook and Andrews met privately Tuesday with Rhodes' two executive assistants, Tom Moyer and Roy Martin. The aides have not commented publicly on the meetings but Cook said afterward he stood by his charges against Andrews.

In announcing the changes, Rhodes wrote Cook and Andrews a letter stating his conclusions about their dispute. In the similar letters, Rhodes stated:

—The highway safety director does not have authority to suspend the registrar.

—Michael M. Kiefer, a bureau employe, should be returned to his job as chief of the title division. He had been assigned other duties.

—Andrews did not violate or circumvent any law by discontinuing inspection by bureau personnel of vehicles entering Ohio for disposition;

—It appears that destroyed records did not include ledger sheets and there was no evidence any law was violated in destruction of other records of the motor vehicles bureau.

—Andrews should reinstate and work to improve 24-hour service of a system for law enforcement agencies to exchange information.

He directed Chiaramonte to begin developing educational programs on highway safety. He also asked Chiaramonte to review a system which law enforcement agencies in Ohio use to trade information.

Dollison, a former city councilman at Logan, is assistant to the director for administrative affairs of the Department of Transportation.

Rhodes directed him to work for passage of a bill sponsored by Rep. James L. Baumann, D-32 Columbus, which would centralize the annual issuance of license registration and license plate renewals. The bill follows similar recommendations by Andrews.

Duplication major concern

Help Anonymous to coordinate Christmas baskets for needy

The Help Anonymous information and referral service program in Washington C.H. will be coordinating the giving of Christmas baskets to needy families in the community this year.

Mrs. Marsha Davis, director of the Help Anonymous program, said the major concern in this year's Christmas basket program.

"We realize that perhaps you have a family you have been doing things for or know about and you wish to give them at Christmas. This is fine, we would just like to know who they are to make sure they are not on several lists to receive baskets," Mrs. Davis said.

Last year some families in the community received as many as five Christmas baskets. Many others received two baskets. Consequently, Mrs. Davis said one large organization which usually gives 10-20 baskets has discontinued the service.

"During a time of year when most of us want to think good, warm, happy, cheery thoughts about our fellow man, it is hard for us to deal with the fact that there are people who make a business out of getting baskets., Mrs. Davis noted. "They often call different groups to ask for baskets, give different names and addresses and therefore get several baskets. Most of us know people who could use more than one basket, however, there is just not enough to go around and we would like to see all who are needy have a nicer holiday," she said. Organizations wishing to donate Christmas baskets should telephone the Help Anonymous office (335-4144) and give the name and address of the family to receive the basket. Organizations are asked to deliver their baskets. The Help Anonymous office hours are 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The Help Anonymous office will provide organizations with names of needy families, will attempt to provide organizations with families to suit requests (size of family, gifts, toys), will keep a card on file on the names of persons receiving baskets and the donor and will attempt to prevent duplications.

Armco blames feds for steel price hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Armco Steel Corp.'s president contends federal regulation is responsible for part of this week's increase in steel prices.

The six per cent increase for sheet steel products which took effect Wednesday has been criticized by the Republican Administration and President-elect Jimmy Carter, a Democrat.

"Our price increases wouldn't have been as great if the federal regulation was not so heavy," said Harry Holiday, Armco president, who made the statement after a speech to a conference of businessmen sponsored by the American Management Associations.

In the speech, Holiday sharply criticized federal regulation, saying it is pushing up prices to consumers.

"There's no longer any doubt that regulation is the central working issue facing America today," he said.

"Unnecessary government regulation falls heavily and expensively on every individual person—man, woman and child—in the United States," he said.

He urged the businessmen in the audience to persuade consumers that federal regulation is hurting them.

"We must show each wageearner how much he pays for excessive regulation. We must demonstrate to each housewife the high cost of government interference," he said.

Holiday asserted that federal safety regulations "have not substantially changed safety in the steel industry. But it has contributed to costs."

In answering a question about the recent price increase, Holiday did not say how much of the increase was due to unnecessary government regulations. "There is now a study under way into exactly how much the regulation is costing," he said in apparent reference to a current study by the White House Council on Wage and Price Stability.

Cincy woman to use lottery money to pay medical bills

CLEVELAND (AP) — The $250,000 top prize in the Ohio Lottery's Pot O' Gold game has given Mrs. Clifford Poppe of Cincinnati a "beautiful" finish to a "rough" year.

Mrs. Poppe, a 63-year-old grandmother and owner of the Poppe Poodle Parlor, a dog grooming business in Cincinnati, said both she and her husband Clifford, 68, a retired electrician, have had heart problems in 1976. She said part of the prize will be used to payoff their medical expenses.

Mrs. Poppe added she plans to continue operating the business she started in 1955.

The Poppes have two sons and four grandchildren. "We really have a beautiful family and two lovely daughters-in-law," Mrs. Poppe said.

In the Lottery's Double Play game, James L. McCoy of Fairborn captured the big prize, $51,000.

Lottery officials said other Pot O' Gold winners were Morton L. Furman of Cleveland, $25,000; Russell S. Boda of Youngstown, $10,600; James S. Walsh of Cincinnati, $9,900; Terry W. Smith of Marion, $9,800; and Judith K. Martin, of Cincinnati, $9,700.

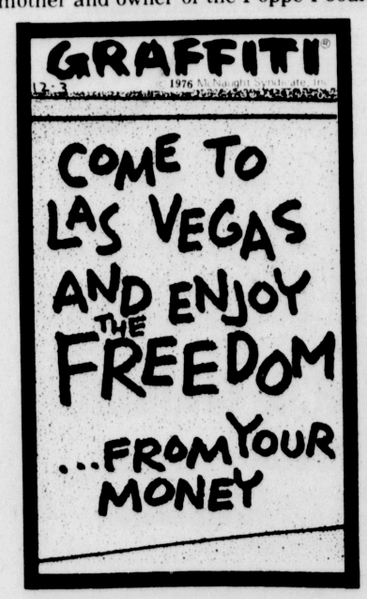

Other Double Play winners were Eleanor Palivec of Garfield Heights, $27,000 and James H. Stanley of Indianapolis, Ind., $10,000.

The winning numbers drawn Thursday night were:

Pot O' Gold: 19390 — 071 — 737.

Double Play: 315345 — 57706 — 777.

The color was red.

But Carter declines to confirm choice

Cyrus Vance new secretary of state

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — Cyrus R. Vance, who served as Lyndon Johnson's world-traveling troubleshooter and tried unsuccessfully to negotiate an end to the Vietnam war in 1968, is the man Jimmy Carter has selected to replace Henry A. Kissinger as secretary of state, sources say.

Carter declined today to confirm the selection but said he wasn't denying the choice would be Vance.

"I wouldn't want to deny Cyrus Vance or anyone else at this point," he said in an interview on the NBC-TV "Today" show.

He was expected to announce the Vance appointment at a news conference later in the day. It will be his first Cabinet appointment.

Carter said he would announce two appointments at the news conference. The second is expected to be that of Atlanta banker Thomas Bertram Lance as his budget director.

The President-elect said he expects to complete most of his Cabinet choices by Christmas.

He said he has been concentrating so far on the national security area, including the State Department, the Pentagon and the National Security Council.

He also mentioned the Treasury as an early priority.

"I think that by Christmas I would have the Cabinet fairly well identified," he said.

Vance, currently a New York lawyer, was a house guest at the Carter home here earlier this week, and the visit stirred speculation that Vance would be named either secretary of state or secretary of defense.

The nomination is subject to Senate confirmation.

Vance, 59, held a variety of posts under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson and was a ranking foreign policy adviser to Carter during the president-elect's campaign for the White House.

A native of Clarksburg, W. Va., Vance was a Navy officer and is a lawyer. He took his first government assignment in 1957 as a special counsel to a Senate subcommittee headed by Sen. Lyndon Johnson.

President John F. Kennedy named Vance in 1961 as Defense Department general counsel and he later became Kennedy's secretary of the Army. Under Johnson, Vance was elevated in 1964 to deputy defense secretary, the No. 2 post in the Pentagon. He resigned the Pentagon job in 1965.

Johnson often used Vance as a world-roving troubleshooter. Assignments from Johnson sent Vance to the Mediterranean during Greek-Turkish disputes over Cyprus, to South Vietnam at the time the war there was escalating, to the Dominican Republic during that country's 1965 civil war, to Panama during the 1964 Canal Zone riots and to South Korea in 1968 to assess what appeared to be rising threats from North Korea.

Johnson then named Vance, along with Averell Harriman, as part of the first negotiating team sent to Paris for peace talks with North Vietnam in 1968-69.

In a September speech to a high-level group that will recommend U.S. policies toward world problems, Vance said the United States has a good chance to reach solid economic agreements with Third World nations.

He urged that the United States be "reasonably forthcoming" in its future dealings with poor nations.

Carter had indicated early on that he planned to name Lance as director of the Office of Management and Budget.

Equal sentencing by judges eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Criminal justice experts often complain when one judge consistently hands out light sentences, while another judge in the next courtroom always gives stiff penalties for essentially the same offense.

These critics say such disparity in sentencing is grossly unfair and may be a major reason the criminal justice system isn't very effective in curbing crime.

Now, the Denver criminal courts have become the first in the nation to test a new method of ending that disparity.

The Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, describing the project today, said judges in several other states are watching the Denver experiment with an eye toward applying it to their own communities.

On Nov. 15, Denver criminal court judges began testing carefully-devised guidelines to determine which offenders are released on probation, which ones are sentenced to work projects and which ones are ordered to jail, and for how long.

The guidelines are designed to take the guesswork out of sentencing, to state clearly what factors the judge will consider and what weight will be given to those factors.

Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi has proposed a similar system for the federal courts. Justice Department officials studying the issue have not yet proposed legislation incorporating Levi's proposal.

The LEAA, part of the Justice Department, dealt with the issue by awarding $348,000 to the Criminal Justice Research Center Inc. of Albany, N.Y., to draft experimental guidelines for nonfederal courts.

The project directors were Professors Leslie Wilkins and Jack M. Kress of the State University of New York at Albany and Dean Don Gottfredson of Rutgers University in Newark. About a dozen judges worked with the researchers during the two-year project.

The work yielded a set of formulas for measuring the seriousness of a crime against the offender's previous criminal record, his schooling and employment record and other factors that theoretically reflect social stability or the lack of it.

The formula was developed specifically for Denver. It involves awarding points according to the seriousness of the crime and the offender's lack of stability.

For example, an individual convicted of a particularly serious manslaughter would get 12 points for the offense. If he were a poorly-educated drifter with a long string of previous convictions, he would get 13 points on the stability scale. These points would mean a prison sentence of eight to 10 years. Ten years is the maximum in Colorado.

Another person, convicted of the same type of crime, might get a four-year sentence if he had no previous convictions and lived a stable life resulting in credits on the stability scale.

"The guideline sentences are in no way intended to be binding, mandatory sentences," the researchers said in a written report. "The judge as human decision-maker will still retain the discretion to override any suggested guideline."

Carter shrugs off B1 decision

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — President-elect Jimmy Carter said today the Pentagon's decision to begin production of the costly, disputed B1 bomber "doesn't really make much difference" in his consideration of whether to go on with it during the new administration.

The Ford administration awarded contracts on Thursday to start production of the warplane Carter once opposed, putting the incoming president in the position of having to cancel a project under way if he decides against it.

But Carter said in an NBC TV "Today" show interview that the administration's move will not affect his thinking.

"I still have adequate time after the inauguration" to decide whether to go on with B1 production, he said.

"I'll reserve the right as I did during the campaign to either proceed with it or use my influence not to proceed ...," Carter said.

He said if the administration had not taken Thursday's action he would have had to decide by February whether to authorize production. Now he has until May to decide whether to stop it. Carter said either timetable would have been all right with him.

"It really doesn't make much difference as far as I can see that the Defense Department went ahead ...," he said.

The Air Force awarded Rockwell International Corp., General Electric Co. and the Boeing Co. three-year contracts totaling $704.9 millon to build the first three B1s and prepare to build additional bombers. The total cost of the proposed fleet of 244 planes would be $22.9 billion.

Carter, who takes office Jan. 20, said during the campaign he saw no need to build the bombers now, without ruling out a possible change in his stand.

On Thursday, his press secretary Jody Powell said Carter will make a thorough review before making a decision. Powell quoted the president-elect as saying that the Ford Administration's approval of the contract was "completely consistent" with its previous policy.

Congress this year limited spending for the B1 production to $87 million a month through Feb. 1. By its action Thursday, the Pentagon approved a plan that would extend the limited funding until June 1, purportedly to give Carter more time to make his ultimate decision on the fate of the bomber. The government had previously invested $2.6 billion in development and testing of the B1.

Pentagon officials have said previously they expected Congress to go along with extending the temporary funding plan until June if Carter accepted that approach.

Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld, who announced the expected go-ahead after consulting with Ford, said the B1 was needed to counteract growing Soviet strength in strategic nuclear weapons.

Air Force Secretary Thomas C. Reed told a news conference, "It would be irresponsible not to initiate B1 production at this time."

The B1, about two-thirds the size of the B52 bomber, is a swing-wing, four-jet aircraft that is designed to fly between continents at supersonic speeds at high altitudes and then drop to tree top heights to penetrate air defense radar at high subsonic speeds.

It would be designed to withstand the effects of nuclear blasts and would be armed with air-to-ground missiles and bombs.

Besides the huge cost of the bomber, opponents contend it would be a waste because they say it is obsolete in the missile age.

Chinese shakeup plus for U.S.

TOKYO (AP) — Huang Hua, China's leading diplomat, has been named foreign minister in a government shakeup expected to buttress the policy of rapprochement with the United States.

Huang, Peking's U.N. ambassador since the Communist regime was admitted to the world body in 1971, replaces his old friend and longtime associate Chiao Kuan-hua.

The announcement of the change, broadcast today by Hsinhua, the official Chinese news agency, gave no explanation for the shift. But it was believed that Chiao was removed because he and his wife were close to Mao Tse-tung's widow, Chiang Ching, who is under arrest with three other leaders of the radical wing of the Chinese Communist party.

Huang's appointment was confirmed at a three-day meeting in Peking of the Standing Committee of the National People's Congress which ended Thursday. Hsinhua said other dismissals and appointments were made at the session, which was the first since the death of Mao. But the report gave no details.

Party Chairman Hua Kuofeng, Mao's successor, was still listed also as premier in reports from Peking. It had been expected that the committee session would ratify the transfer of the premiership to senior Vice Premier Li Hsien-nien.

Both Chiao, 68, and Huang, 63, were closely associated with the late Premier Chou En-lai's 1971 initiatives that brought President Richard M. Nixon to Peking the next year to end more than two decades of Chinese-American hostility. But Huang, untainted by association with the purged radicals, may have been regarded by Peking's new moderate leaders as better qualified to negotiate with the United States for full diplomatic relations.

The Hsinhua report gave no clue to Chiao's future. The man he replaced as foreign minister in 1974, Chi Peng-fei, had been rumored to be in disgrace but reappeared later as secretary-general of the congressional Standing Committee.

Huang, a native of Kiangsu province, was a star student at American-run Yenching University until he joined the Communist underground in the 1930s. During World War II, in Yenan, the Communist cave capital, he was Chou En-lai's liaison man with visiting American correspondents and the small U.S. military liaison mission.

He again became familiar to Americans as a tough and often abrasive negotiator at the prolonged Korean peace talks at Panmunjom and was Chou's spokesman at the 1954 Geneva conference on Korea and Indochina. Later he was ambassador to Ghana, Egypt and Canada before going to the United Nations.

Waldheim seeking new term in U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The 15 members of the Security Council begin private meetings today to work out arrangements for the election of the next secretary-general of the United Nations. Unless the Chinese veto him, Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim appears certain to be re-elected.

Waldheim, an Austrian whose five-year term ends Jan. 1., is one of two announced candidates. The other is Luis Echeverria, who relinquished the presidency of Mexico Wednesday.

Hamilton Shirley Amerasinghe of Sri Lanka, president of the General Assembly, has declared himself available in case the council cannot agree on anybody else and chooses him unanimously without a vote. Manuel Perez Guerrero, Venezuelan minister of state for economic and international affairs, and Carlos Ortiz de Rozas, Argentina's U.N. ambassador, were mentioned as outside possibilities.

Ion Datcu, the Romanian president of the 15-nation council, planned private, informal consultations to seek agreement on such details as the date for the council's first voting session, who will make up the list of candidates and whether to hold a separate ballot on each candidate or a single ballot on all at once.

Nine of the council members must agree on a candidate, who then is recommended to the General Assembly for its approval. However, any of the five permanent council members — the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain, France and China — can use its veto to block a candidate.

Diplomats familiar with consultations between Datcu and the other 14 members on Wednesday and Thursday said they believed Echeverria would get at least three votes — from China, Panama and Guyana — on the first ballot, and Waldheim would get the rest.

Sources purporting to be familiar with the Chinese view said China would vote for Echeverria because it wants a man from the Third World. But they said the Chinese would not block Waldheim.

Some observers said this meant that China, while voting for Echeverria, would abstain from the vote on Waldheim and let him get the recommendation for which he seems to have well over nine votes nailed down.

Others predicted that China would veto Waldheim on the first ballot and abstain on the next one so that he would be the choice. A third prediction was that China would keep vetoing Waldheim until the council agreed on another candidate.

The 10 non-permanent members of the council are Benin, Guyana, Italy, Japan, Libya, Pakistan, Panama, Romania, Sweden and Tanzania.

Drug-hunting dog makes his mark

WAYCROSS, Ga. (AP) — Blitz, a drug-hunting dog, developed such a reputation around Savannah that police moved him 200 miles to Waycross, where he's continued to earn his dog treats.

Drug squad officers took Blitz aboard Amtrak's Chicagobound Floridian train here Thursday night. The dog promptly sniffed out 137 pounds of marijuana worth an estimated $52,000, resulting in the arrest of four persons.

In the last six weeks, Blitz had helped Chatham County police arrest 38 persons on Amtrak trains passing through Savannah, and confiscate nearly 400 pounds of marijuana.

Brown team slated for state probe

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Atty. Gen. William J. Brown has rejected Gov. James A. Rhodes' proposal for the appointment of a "special independent prosecutor" to investigate scandal in the workmen's compensation benefit program.

"I told him I had my team already picked," the attorney general said Thursday. "I would not ask him to appoint a special governor when he had some tough things to do."

In a letter to Brown, Rhodes granted the attorney general broad investigative powers in advance of the Jan. 17 effective date of a workmen's compensation reform bill that gives Brown essentially the same authority. Brown asked Rhodes last month to take such action.

Rhodes' letter said, "I believe no means of prosecuting persons suspected of fraudulent activities should go unused.

"I am requiring you to appear for the state in the prosecution of any crimes pertaining to the payment of workmen's compensation benefits and fees, and to order a special grand jury to be summoned pursuant to your authority..." Rhodes added.

He also ordered Brown to take action for civil recovery of any money due the State Insurance Fund. Investigations by the Cuyahoga County Prosecutor and the Industrial Commission investigative unit have already yielded 100 indictments, many in connection with phony benefit claims, Rhodes noted.

"This language (in the letter) triggers the statute to give the attorney general the authority," Brown said. "I am very pleased with the governor."

But Republican Rhodes also told the Democratic attorney general: "In order that the authority granted you by this letter may be executed in a manner most conducive to impartiality, I request that you appoint a special, independent prosecutor to conduct the prosecutions."

That will not be done, Brown said. He has named an investigative team, headed by Asst. Atty. Gen. Stephen Fitch.

A special grand jury may be appropriate "down the line," Brown said, indicating his investigation had not yet reached that stage.

Rhodes said in his letter to Brown he had been "informed a great deal of the chief investigator's time has been spent in educating your staff as to what methods for investigation have been used to date and how to search for a fraudulent claim."

Brown said if briefing on a case he entered informally last month was considered "educational," then it was to be expected.

Carter plans peace move

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — President-elect Jimmy Carter said today he plans to send an informal message to Moscow expressing his determination to seek permanent peace and strategic arms limitation accords with the Soviet Union.

Carter said he would do so through unofficial channels in response to Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev's assurance that there will be no pressure from Moscow to test the new administration.

By saying it, in an interview on the NBC-TV "Today" show, Carter in effect did it. He said his message would be a reciprocal expression of dedication to peaceful relations with the Russians.

Carter also said that after his Jan. 20 inauguration, he plans to press aggressively for progress in the stalled strategic arms limitation negotiations.

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP)— Ronald C. Garrett, 34, head of the Dayton, Ky. Veterans Assistance Programs, was held in lieu of bond after he was arrested at Greater Cincinnati Airport Thursday with $800,000 worth of heroin concealed in his hat.

Asst. Erlanger Chief Ken Yaden, director of the Northern Kentucky Narcotics Unit, said the arrest was made by local and federal agents as Garrett got off a flight from Los Angeles, Calif.

Trash collection service for Milledgeville studied

MILLEDGEVILLE — During a monthly meeting of the Milledgeville Village Council on Wednesday, a trash collection system for residents of the village was discussed.

David Thompson, owner and operator of Tidd's Refuse Service, of Jamestown, attended the meeting in an effort to coordinate trash collection dates throughout the village.

Thompson, who recently took over trash collection operations in the Milledgeville area, requested that residents notify him or Mrs. Helen Anderson (948-2575) of the times, on a weekly or semi-weekly basis, trash collection is desired. He may be contacted at 513-675-2791.

In other Milledgeville village council matters, a new street light contract slated for renewal with the Dayton Power and Light Co. was discussed, and various outstanding bills were paid.

Wednesday's meeting was continued until a later, as yet unconfirmed, date in December. The meeting was extended by council to allow for the final payment of all outstanding bills. It is also hoped that by the end of the month the proper papers required for the transformation of the Milledgeville Methodist Church property into village ownership will be complete.

Toledo Tools set to close doors

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Two hundred employes will lose their jobs at Toledo Tools early next year as the plant here closes.

The firm, a division of Wyle Laboratories, has been operated locally for 75 years, producing pipe-threading equipment and in 1963 was considered the second largest such manufacturer in the world.

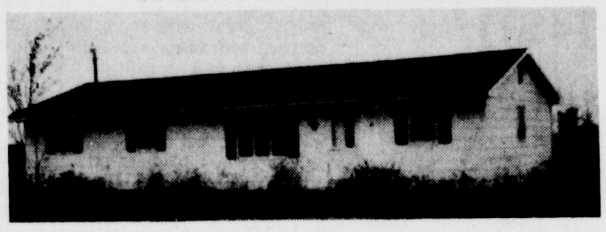

Thomas H. Smith, vice president and general manager, said over the past 10 years the plant's operating results have been insufficient to justify its continuance.

Toledo Tools, formerly Toledo-Beaver Tools, Inc. and before that the Toledo Pipe Threading Machine Co., will be consolidated with Wyle's Curtis Manufacturing Division.

Normalizing China relations

Upon his return from a three-week visit to China Sen. Mike Mansfield urged that the United States move quickly now to complete the hitherto slow process of normalizing relations with the country. A question of what constitutes the greater national good is involved in considering his position.

The Taiwan problem is the greatest obstacle in the way of normalizing U.S.-Chinese relations. The mainland Chinese government adamantly holds that settlement of this problem is strictly an internal matter. The step Mansfield advocates would thus almost certainly require the severance of defense treaty commitments to Taiwan which have been in force since 1955.

The question is whether our national interest would best be served by withdrawing from that treaty, or by clinging to it and perpetuating the present arm's length relationship with Peking. Mansfield argues for the former course. In his report to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee the retiring majority leader said: "Treaties are not forever."

This is not as cynical as it may sound. Implicit in the statement is recognition of the inescapable fact that patterns of relationship change as international circumstances change. To illustrate this one need only point to the fundamental alteration of U.S. relations with West Germany and Japan since the end of World War II.

Treaty commitments are not to be taken lightly. It must be recalled, however, that the pact with Taiwan was made at a time when Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist regime there was still widely perceived in this country as the legitimate government of China. Chaing's insistence that he would some day return to the mainland to take over did not seem to be entirely unrealistic. We were then in the midst of a deep freeze so far as relations with the Communist-led mainland government were concerned.

Circumstances have changed dramatically. In 1971 the Nationalists, having become less and less credible as the government of China, were expelled from the United Nations and replaced by the People's Republic of China. The Nixon visit in 1973 brought a resumption of contact with Peking after 22 years.

That bud has been slow to flower. There has been an exchange of diplomatic missions, and substantially increased trade, but that is about all. Senator Mansfield, who has been a student of China for many years, now concludes that normalization of relations should be completed with the least possible delay even if it means ending the Taiwan defense commitment. We concur in this.

THESE DAYS .... By John Chamberlain

Carter's nuclear power mandate

Like John F. Kennedy in 1960, Jimmy Carter is having trouble deducing a presidential mandate from a vote that was all too close. But the people spoke up loud and clear on one thing when they rejected, in the states of Arizona, Colorado, Montana, Ohio, Oregon and Washington, putting any further hobbles on atomic energy plants. The margin in the six states was roughly two to one, an approximate repetition of the pro-nuclear vote in California last spring.

To judge from some of his campaign statements, Carter may be lagging behind the voters on the subject of adding to our energy capacity by speeding our nuclear program. Not too long ago, to satisfy my personal curiosity, I visited the Babcock and Wilcox commercial nuclear loading facility in Lynchburg, Va. The one thing that distressed me about the plant was a pile of completed equipment in a corner that had been ordered many moons ago by the Florida Power and Light Company.

The litigiousness inspired by the anti-nuclear zealots had deprived Floridians of the use of a relatively cheap power source. Multiplied many times throughout the country, this sort of delaying action has prevented us from making an obvious response to the lords of the Middle East oil monopoly.

If the Naderite opponents of nuclear development were right about the probability of atomic disaster flowing from a plant "melt," there would be no argument against the sort of delays that have plagued the Florida Power and Light Company at one end of the Atlantic seaboard and the start-up of the Seabrook nuclear power plant in New Hampshire at the other. But the atomic record for safety over a 20-year period is most impressive.

During the whole period in which commercial nuclear power has been a reality, no atomic failure has resulted in a single injury to any power company employee. And no one outside a power plant has ever been overexposed to dangerous radiation.

Nobody would contend that atomic waste in general, or plutonium in particular, is something to be handled casually. But the scaremongering that goes on about plutonium has exaggerated its lethal menace out of all proportion.

Dr. Dixie Lee Ray, the former head of the Atomic Energy Commission, who will be the next governor of Washington, insists that botulinus toxin, for instance, is much more poisonous than plutonium. A teaspoon of botulinus toxin, she says, would be enough to kill 140 million people. A teaspoon of plutonium, on the other hand, would only be half enough to kill one person.

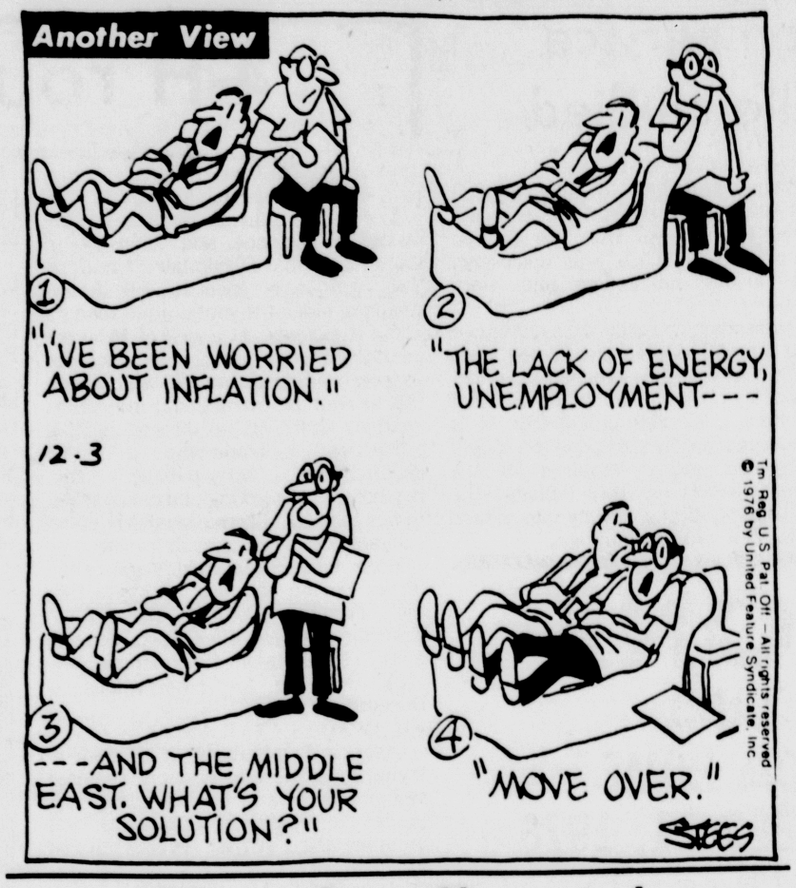

The risk from plutonium overexposure is cancer after some 15 to 45 years have passed. So nobody prejudiced in favor of longevity should treat contact with plutonium lightly. But other poisons, such as the toxins present in certain toadstools, can kill almost instantaneously.

One presumptive danger that could result from the overabundance of plutonium as a by-product of the operation of commercial reactors or the establishment of a "breeder" plant is that irresponsible people - or nations -might turn the lethal stuff into bombs. But the ordinary terrorist would hardly know enough, or have the requisite scientific organization at his beck, to make a "do-it-yourself-' bomb. If he did not produce a dud he would probably kill himself in the effort to make a useful explosive.

Dr. Bernard Cohen of the Institute for Energy Analysis makes the uncomfortable point that the access which terrorists have to dynamite or handguns or simple kitchen matches is much more of a menace that the possibility that they might succeed in hijacking a shipment of atomic waste.

We are already getting some 200 billion kilowatt hours of electricity from nuclear power plants. This is enough to service some 23 million households. What the public endorsement of atomic power at the ballot box means is that energy shortfalls by the end of the century are less likely. But if Jimmy Carter doesn't act on his one clear mandate the country will continue to shiver while the lawyers litigate.

CB sales flourish at record levels

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite a late summer-early fall sales slump, more citizens band radios will be sold this year than in the 18 years since the general public has been permitted to use them, an industry trade group predicts.

John Sodolski, an Electronics Industries Association vice president, said 1976 sales will total nearly 10 million sets, more than double the number of CB radios sold last year.

Retail sales of radios, antennae and other accessories should top $2 billion this year, he predicted.

Sodolski said there are nearly 20 million CB sets now in use. The Federal Communications Commission said it has issued 7.5 million licenses, with the rate of applications continuing at about 300,000 a month.

Many CB enthusiasts install units in both their homes and their cars to enable home-to-mobile conversations.

The industry expects CB sales to continue to climb next year, Sodolski said, due largely to publicity since the growth of CBs began in 1973, new features and the expansion of the current 23-channel CB band to 40 channels next month.

Recent FCC figures show about 70 models containing the new 17 channels have been approved for sale on Jan. 1 when the FCC channel expansion becomes effective.

Sodolski said only three million CB sets were sold between 1958, when CB radio as it is now known was created, and 1973, when a combination of factors triggered the current boom. Sales in 1973 exceeded one million, then more than doubled each year since then.

But the FCC expansion decision and its initial confusion, combined with the usual late summer sales slump and supply finally meeting demand, brought about a halt in the rising rate of sales in September.

Nevertheless, Sodolski said, record sales in the first half of 1976 and the expected resumption of sales in November and December is expected to result in the 10-million-unit sales this year.

Sodolski said he expects a shortage of the new 40-channel sets early next year because of FCC rules that prevent shipping the new units to retailers until Jan. 1, and because of some industry difficulty in meeting new FCC standards required to lessen CB interference with television and other broadcast bands.

Nevertheless, the FCC said last week that 79 models had been approved for sale and testing of others will continue to determine whether they meet the new FCC standards and can be sold to the public.

In 1830 Toledo was yet unborn, but Maumee and Perrysburg were havens for early Ohio travelers. New efforts to establish a town at the mouth of the Maumee, the site of Toledo, continued and by 1850 the city had a population of 3,829.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Show your love before it's too late

DEAR ABBY: I notice that readers sometimes ask you to print a letter again, but is there any one that has been requested more than any other?

CURIOUS IN BUTLER, PA.

DEAR CURIOUS: The big all-time winner was signed "TOO LATE" and here it is:

DEAR ABBY: I am the most heart-broken person on earth. I always found time to go everywhere else but to see my old, grayhaired parents. They sat at home alone, loving me just the same.

It is too late now to give them those few hours of happiness I was too selfish and too busy to give, and now when I go to visit their graves and look at the green grass above them, I wonder if God will ever forgive me for the heartaches I must have caused them.

I pray that you will print this, Abby, to tell those who still have their parents to visit them and show their love and respect while there is still time. For it is later than you think.

TOO LATE

DEAR ABBY: I have a suggestion that really works for people who are bothered by obscene telephone calls:

The minute you hear an obscene word, say, "Just a moment please," and walk away from the phone without hanging up. The caller will think you are coming back, but when he waits and waits and you don't return, he will tire of waiting and hang up. He can't break the connection because your phone is off the hook. This will make it impossible for the caller to use his phone to harrass other women. Also, he will never want to call you again and be deprived of his depraved fun.

OFF THE HOOK

DEAR OFF: Your suggestion will work, but while punishing the caller you are also depriving yourself of the use of your phone. Ma Bell recommends that you hang up immediately, and if the calls continue, to call the police who will undertake certain surveillance procedures in cooperation with the phone company.

It seems to me that the wisest course of action would be to keep your caller's line connected to yours (but not hanging up) and then go to a neighbor's phone to report the obscene call to both the phone company and the police.

DEAR ABBY: I was married to Jim eight years ago. We had two sons, then we were divorced. Two years later Jim married my younger sister. They had twin daughters.

My question: Are my sons and my sister's twin daughters just first cousins? Or are they more closely related?

NEEDS TO KNOW

DEAR NEEDS: Your sons and your sister's twin daughters are first cousins. But because they have the same father, they are half-brothers and sisters, which is a closer relationship.

the ILLUSTRATED BIBLE

The Voice in the Wilderness

"Prepare a way for the Lord; clear a straight path for Him." —Luke 3: 4

In John the Baptist we can see reflected the great tradition of Israel's patriarchs and prophets. Pilgrimage through the wilderness to the Promised Land is a chief recurring theme of Biblical literature. The Exodus experience became the focus of faith and yearning after Jerusalem's destruction by the hosts of Babylon. Isaiah with the prophetic voice of Moses called the captive and discouraged people to a new and wider vision of hope in God's promises. Through the desert and back to Zion, Jehovah would lead his ransomed people on a highway as grand as those of Imperial Rome. Jerusalem was rebuilt, yet new enemies conquered. God's pledge was still unfulfilled. Then came John, calling Israel to a spiritual pilgrimage of repentance and foretelling the time when "all mankind shall see God's deliverance."

Christian Advice Column offers new suggestions

Question: My son's life is in such a dreadful state that I don't even know how to pray for him. Can you give me any suggestions?

Answer: Yes, my suggestion is to picture your child as you want him to be. Imagine him as happy and healthy in every way. As you make this faith image, ask God to let you see him the way God sees him—perfect and whole.

Before a carpenter picks up his hammer, he has a picture in his mind of what he will make. The chair or cabinet or room exists in his imagination as a finished and perfect piece of work. An architect creates a building in his mind long before any actual work begins.

A story is told of an artist who admired a ramshackle building he passed each morning on the way to his studio. To the ordinary passerby the house with its tumbledown porch, loose hanging shutters, and broken windows was only an eyesore. But the artist's imaginative eye saw something different. He saw something beautiful.

Finally, he bought the house, moved into it, and began to make the improvements he had always dreamed of. Week by week and month by month the old building took on a new appearance. At last it was transformed into a gleaming white mansion of striking beauty and grace.

It takes practice to see the best in a person and the good in a situation. It's the way God sees us; it's the way love sees. I think parents have a gift for seeing the best in their children. And you may be the only one who can see you son the way God sees him—as he can become, his potential fully realized.

Acting out your prayer means believing that God, and God alone, will change your son. It means you realize you can't change him, and so you won't even try. It means seeing only the best in him and treating him not as he is now but according to your faith image for him. . .as the person he will become. This kind of positive prayer can free your son to be his real self. . .and empower him to become the man of your prayer.

Ohio may escape $60 million loss

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — With two minor regulation changes, Ohio apparently will be able to avoid a threatened loss of $60 million in federal welfare funds, the State Controlling Board was told Thursday.

Clyde Downing, Chicago regional director of social and rehabilitation services for the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, gave that word in what turned out to be an amiable confrontation between federal and state officials.

Robert F. Howarth Jr., controlling board president, and other fiscal officials breathed a collective sigh of relief although some negotiations remained between Downing and Welfare Director Kwegyir Aggrey.

Howarth said he was confident the disputes involving state and federal welfare regulations will be resolved by next Monday.

Aggrey and other officials had advised the board Nov. 24 that Ohio stood to lose $60 million in federal matching funds because new HEW regulations, adopted July 1, overrule certain parts of the formula the state uses for reimbursements to nursing homes for welfare recipients' care.

The admonition chilled state financial planners already scraping to get Ohio through its current period of low revenue months to the end of the fiscal biennium next June 30. Downing confirmed Thursday that the $60 million loss was a possibility, but only if the department refuses to change the two regulations.

Otherwise, the regulations expected to be disallowed in an upcoming HEW audit, the federal official said, permit the payment of profit allowances based on operating costs of nursing homes, and allow other supplemental payments keyed to depreciation of property and equipment.

Downing recommended that in order to avert the loss of funds, or at least a major portion, the profit allowance should be pegged strictly to the net capital investments of the nursing home operators. He had no objections, he said, to the amounts of the present profit allowances—up to $1.50 a day per patient.

Downing said, with regard to the depreciation allowances, HEW objects only to the fact that the payments are set arbitrarily at $4.50 a day for homes licensed since 1968, $3.50 a day for those licensed between 1958 and 1968, and $2.50 a day for those licensed prior to 1958.

HEW is willing to go along with the depreciation regulations if they are specified as ceilings, allowing flexibility to approve lower amounts, he said.

Howarth said late Thursday that Aggrey and Downing already were meeting to resolve the questions, and he quoted Aggrey as saying an agreement should be ready for controlling board review at its meeting next Monday.

Downing actually wound up praising Ohio at Thursday's special meeting, saying it was "in the forefront" among most other states seeking to comply with the new federal regulations.

Minor accident probed by police

Only one traffic accident was reported by area law enforcement agencies on Thursday.

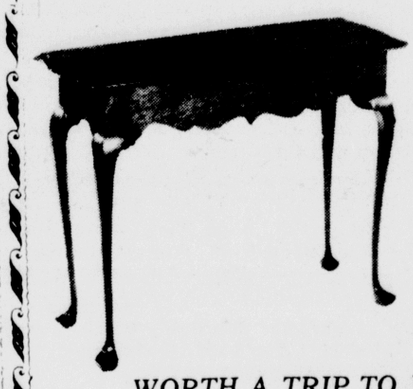

According to Washington C.H. police officers, a car driven by Brenda L. Hart, 18, of Leesburg, incurred slight damage when it struck a cement guard beside gasoline pumps on the Stop-N-Go parking lot, 19 Fayette Center.

There was no damage to the fixed structure as a result of the 5:34 p.m. Thursday accident, police officers said.

When the federal government decided it could not maintain the National Road it was turned over to the states by sections and in 1928 Ohio and Pennsylvania passed laws for maintenance and accepted completed portions in 1831 and 1934. —AP

Marine taxidermy enjoys boom

HALLANDALE, Fla. (AP) — It may be only a bite-size snapper or maybe an 800-pound tuna. But if it is a prize ocean catch of a tourist fisherman, it may be worth the hundreds of dollars to stuff it for display.

More than seven million salt water fishermen visit Florida's sunny shores each year. And the demand to preserve prize catches of marlin, shark, sailfish and bluefin tuna is so great that marine taxidermy has grown to be a multi-million dollar industry.

When a vacationing fisherman leaves his treasured tuna or snapper, it is a slimy, dripping carcass, probably suspended from a hook at a marina. The next he sees it, some two-to-six months and a few hundred dollars later, the fish is brightly painted and firm, ready to hang above a fireplace or office desk.

A sting ray with a six-foot wing span might cost almost $400 to mount. A 12-foot marlin goes for more than $900 at one local taxidermist. And a one-to-10 inch snapper can be processed for less than $100.

The three or four major marine taxidermists in the state make their money by turning out a product as similar to the real thing as possible. But most fish mounts utilize no more than the thin skin from the live fish. Other mounts don't even use the skin but rely on fiberglass.

At one major taxidermist, who has 5,000 to 7,000 fish in different stages of processing each day, a fish starts its journey on a skinning room floor, blood dripping from gaping mouth.

The hollow-skin process of taxidermy has no use for the insides of the fish, so just the paper-thin skin is preserved through a chemical curing procedure. The curing, to dry up the skin oils, takes from two days to two weeks, with oilyskinned tarpon taking even longer.

The fish resembles a deflated balloon now, so it must be reshaped in a fiberglass mold and stuffed with a burlap-plaster mixture and later sawdust, which is removed.

Damaged fins are repaired or replaced with pasteboard or plastic, and the fish is ready for its new eyes.

A little sanding, a little touch up, and the fish is ready for painting, a multi-step process that begins with three different primers "just like an auto," said a spokesman.

Final painting follows a chart at the taxidermy to ensure that shiny black manta rays have white bellies and cowfish have spots before they leave the shop for drying and shipping after four months or so.

But not all of the fish brought to be stuffed are prize ocean catches, said Jesse Webb of the Hallandale firm.

"Someone brought us a 2½inch goldfish, which had been a family pet for seven years. No doubt, that is the smallest fish we ever mounted."

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Methinks cries of outrage will come from senior enlisted men and officers in the National Guard and Reserves if they see tonight's NBC News Special, "The Sometimes Soldiers."

It's a valuable look at what some call "weekend warriors," the 800,000-member force of citizen-soldiers, sailors and airmen who'll back up America's regular military troops in time of national emergency.

And it gives the impression that many Guard and Reserve units — save those in aviation — spend much time killing time on weekends, waste tax dollars and generally aren't ready to go into combat quickly.

A kibitzer, a naval aviation reservist who sat behind me at an advance screening, was moved to say the show is unfair, that "it doesn't show the positive side of what we do."

He said members of his Navy unit work their fantails off when they train on weekends and while on active duty.

Well, his gang may be ready for anything. But other units? And are most of them so combat-ready that if the President says "go" they can move out in terms of hours and days, not weeks and months, and constitute an effective fighting force or part of one?

This is what "Sometimes Soldiers" tries to examine. And the issue is crucial, now that there's no draft swelling the ranks of the regulars and heavy reliance is placed on the Guard and Reserves.

In the absence of the draft, a fresh look at weekend warrioring is particularly worthwhile, even if it rehashes old ground — inefficiency, political influence, lack of training and duplication of functions. And all this comes out in tonight's show.

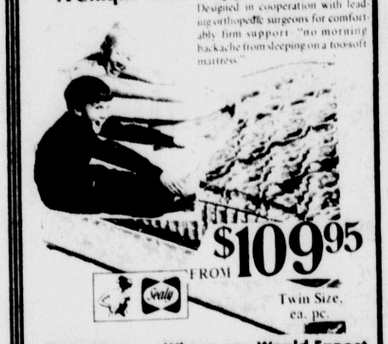

It may prod fresh thinking about America's military reserves, both among the citizenry and on Capitol Hill. Which is all to the good. The subject should be examined and re-examined.

However, I do wish producer-writer Bob Rogers or reporter Ford Rowan had gone more into whether the units shown are in the Pentagon's view, ready for call-up and combat and can do the job.

Much time was spent hearing lower-ranking enlisted reservists griping that they had nothing to do, that it's all a waste of time.

The point is made. But I recall having similar gripes 13 years ago while a drafted guest of the Regular Army, helping defend Ft. Benning, Ga., against all enemies Northern and domestic.

Elizabeth Ray avoids reporters

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Elizabeth Ray, in town to audition for a role in the Union Plaza Hotel's new production, "Hanky Panky," refused to be photographed or to speak with reporters invited by hotel officials to see her.

Miss Ray, now appearing in a play in Chicago, sat in a Union Plaza showroom booth Thursday and refused to go on stage for her audition until reporters and photographers left. She said she didn't want to answer any questions.

Rep. Wayne Hays of Ohio resigned his House seat after Miss Ray said she was put on his staff payroll only to provide sexual favors.

Ohio Perspective

Demo majority gets challenge

By ROBERT E. MILLER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Michael J. Maloney, who heads the Senate Republican leadership team in the upcoming session of the legislature, had laid some sobering challenges at the door of the Democratic majority.

At the same time, the onetime Statehouse newspaper reporter believes minority Republicans can play a viable role, and says they are willing to cooperate with Democrats in solving what he termed very difficult problems.

Maloney, R-7 Cincinnati, a 47-year-old father of five, will be in his second, two-year term as minority leader, and embarking on his 13th year as a senator. He is acknowledged among lawmakers as an expert on tax matters, and was chairman of the important Senate Ways and Means Committee when Republicans lost control of the upper chamber in 1974.

Serving with Maloney on the Senate GOP leadership team will be veteran Sen. Paul E. Gillmor, R-2 Port Clinton, as assistant minority leader, and Sen. Thomas A. Van Meter, R-19 Ashland. Like Maloney, they have undenied ambitions for statewide office.

Maloney has been mentioned as a possible candidate in 1978 for secretary of state or lieutenant governor, Van Meter for lieutenant governor, and Gillmor as a possible candidate for attorney general—a race the Port Clinton lawyer almost ran in 1974.

Right now, however, they realize they have their hands full trying to make their voices heard in a legislature voters made veto proof against GOP Gov. James A. Rhodes in the Nov. 2 election. Only 12 Republicans serve in the 33-member Senate.

Maloney sounded much like Rhodes in his projections for the 1977-1979 session in a recent Columbus speech.

He listed the state's economy as the priority item, and singled the loss of industry and jobs as the most important problem the lawmakers will face when they convene on Jan. 3.

Along that line, he mentioned tax changes to help retain industry and bring news ones into Ohio. He said a 1976 enactment, heralded as one that would aid industry, in effect, wound up increasing their obligations in tangible personal property taxes by about $38 million.

He also said the state has no energy policy after about three years of haggling, although bills by members of both parties have been offered. Maloney said the fact that people are leaving Ohio faster than any other state "to go where the jobs are" compounds the problem further.

Maloney said that while the state's two-year budget is going to be tough "there are some corrollary issues." He said he doesn't take the tack that Ohio is hopelessly caught up in the national economic picture. "There are some things we can do, some new commitments we can make," he said.

On three felony charges each

Two indicted by grand jurors in jail escape attempt case

Two inmates of the Fayette County Jail, who were allegedly involved in an escape attempt on November 18, were each indicted on three felony charges Thursday by a session of the Fayette County Grand Jury.

James Radcliff, 21, of Delaware, and Donald Bock, 19, of Sabina, were indicted on charges stemming from an unsuccessful prison break during which Fayette County Sheriff's Deputy Thomas E. Rodgers was injured.

Radcliff was charged with aiding an escape, escape, and felonious assault. Bock was indicted on charges of aiding an escape, complicity in an escape, and complicity in felonious assault. He was also indicted on counts of breaking and entering and grand theft, relating to alleged October 7 incidents in which Bock reportedly stole an automobile and burglarized a county school building.

According to Fayette County Sheriff's Department personnel, Radcliff, who was being detained for violation of a Fayette County Juvenile Court order, and Bock planned to overpower jailer-dispatcher Rodgers and escape. However, Rodgers was able to overpower Radcliff and call for assistance, Sheriff Donald L. Thompson said.

Washington C.H. Police Sgt. Robert Massie and patrolman Anthony Wilson responded to Rodgers' call for assistance along with Sheriff Thompson who was in the northern portion of the county.

The alleged early-morning jail escape attempt resulted in injury to Rodgers, who was treated and released from Fayette County Memorial Hospital after the prisoner was again secured.

According to the report, weapons used to strike Rodgers were made from cleaning equipment used at the jail.

Three other persons were indicted by the grand jury on Thursday.

Jackie Garrison, 32, of 604 S. Elm St., was indicted for felonious assault stemming from an early Monday morning incident during which he allegedly assaulted another person during a domestic altercation. He was arrested by Washington C.H. police officers.

Crystal D. Jackson, 18, of Martinsville, arrested Nov. 22 after an investigation by members of the Fayette County Sheriff's and Washington C.H. Police departments, was charged with three counts of check forgery. Her husband, Charles, was indicted on three counts of complicity in check forgery.

The alleged forged checks were reported to have been passed during October at a market in Bloomingburg, and two Washington C.H. businesses.

An unusually severe arctic outbreak plunged southward into Ohio Thursday, tumbling low temperature records across the northern part of the state, but the cold air mass was to begin moving out today.

Temperatures began rising a little in the western part of the state today, and slowly rising temperatures were likely through tonight and Saturday.

There is a chance of light snow in the northern part of the state tonight, but it should end Saturday morning.

Low temperature records for Dec. 2 were broken just before midnight and then more records were broken early this morning.

County fair dates okayed for 1977

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Dates for the 1977 Fayette County Fair have been approved by the Ohio Department of Agriculture.

The 1977 Fayette County Fair will be held from Sunday, July 24 to Saturday, July 30.

Dates approved for neighboring county fairs include Clinton County, August 8-13; Greene County, August 1-6; Highland County, September 6-10; Pickaway County, July 31-August 5, and Ross County, August 8-13.

"It is a pleasure to release the dates of the fairs," said John M. Stackhouse, director of the Ohio Department of Agriculture. "Our independent and county agricultural fairs are one of the most important community activities in which people of all ages are involved. From unofficial estimated reports, Ohio's local fairs enjoyed a record attendance this past summer of over five and a half million," Stackhouse reported.

It was noted that the junior fair participation has continued to grow at a record pace. Nearly 1,800 young people exhibited a record 2,500 projects per fair this year. Over a five-year period the number of young people exhibiting increased nearly 20 per cent and the number of junior fair exhibits grew over 30 per cent during the same period.

"One of the most unique aspects of the fairs is the fact that thousands of volunteers work behind the scenes to make Ohio's 95 county and independent fairs the greatest in the nation," Stackhouse said. "There are over 1,800 elected fair board directors who serve for little or no pay year after year. In addition, there are thousands of advisors and counselors of youth organizations who devote extensive time and effort in helping young people learn about and appreciate the thousands of different kinds of projects exhibited at the fairs. There are numerous other individuals and groups who deserve praise for their contributions to the success of the 95 fairs. Some of those include local and state governmental officials, representatives of the news media, educational and business leaders and civic organizations," Stackhouse concluded.

Urge stable sugar prices for future

WASHINGTON (AP) — With world sugar stockpiles rising and prices down from the record levels of 1975, pressure is growing for congressional action to stabilize prices and assure a constant supply for consumers in the future.

The Agriculture Department says U.S. sugarbeet producers, particularly, have suffered from widely swinging prices and competition from foreign sugar on the domestic market. Growers may be on the verge of cutting back sharply on 1977 production.

"Prospective large world supplies are likely to maintain downward pressure on sugar prices in the short run, unless there are some cutbacks in next year's world sugar crop," the department's Outlook and Situation Board said this week.

"Producers will be watching for new U.S. executive or legislative action or a new international agreement that would enhance prices," the board said in a report.

Other analysts in USDA quote trade sources as estimating that American sugarbeet farmers may cut 1977 plantings 15 to 25 per cent from this year.

On a world basis, a record sugar harvest this year is expected to total nearly 96 million short tons (2,000 pounds each), up almost six million tons from 1975. This is in excess of world requirements and thus means "world stocks will rise substantially" by the time another crop is ready next year, the report said.

Firemen check gas fume case

Washington C.H. firemen investigated a gas fume complaint at a local residence Thursday.

Firemen said that fuel oil spilled onto a sewer line pumper unit was the apparent cause of gas fumes in the John R. Skinner residence, 437 Broadway St., at 8:56 p.m. Thursday.

Letters to Santa

Dear Santa Claus,

My name is Christi Lynn Snyder and I am four-years old. My mommy is writing this for me since I don't know how to write very well yet. I have tried to be good for mommy and daddy but it is sometimes awfully hard.

For Christmas I would like a Baby Boo Hoo and some new books for daddy to read to me and any other toys you want to bring me.

My little brother Craig would like a cycle and some new cars and trucks. We will leave you some cookies and milk to eat on Christmas Eve.

Christi and Craig Snyder
1212 Nelson Place

Dear Santa,

I love you. I've been good all the time. I am five years old. How old are you, Santa? When you come to my house, come into my room and wake me up. You can bring Rudolph inside my house if you have him with you. Please let me pet him.

I would like to have these toys, please: A car with a key, a doll that says "mommy and daddy", a perfection game, Playdough ice cream truck, Jaws game, Dusty and Nugget, a Lassie dog and a doll stroller.

Santa, Victor doesn't know if you are real, or not. He doesn't even know if the Easter Bunny is real. I thing that the Easter Bunny is real and that you are real too.

Santa and the Giant Fighter

Synopsis: An elfite persuades the boy who believes in giants to go to Santa Land and fight the giant who has captured the Fairy Queen.

THEY MEET A TOAD

It's a very long way to Santa Land and very few people know the way.

William Henry Christopher Preeserve—now known as Billy the Giant Fighter—was glad he had the elfite to guide him because even with directions he was sure he would never find his way.

It was very dark. At first this was no problem because the elfite wore earmuffs and each muff had a little light attached to it. All Billy had to do was follow the twin lights bouncing ahead of him through the woods.

But after a while even the elfite appeared to be lost. "Of course it would be much easier if we had the moon," he complained. "But since Goko the giant has stolen it out of the sky everything is all mixed up and there's no telling where we might end up."

They went north, east, west and south. They seemed to be going in circles and the elfite hurried along muttering, "Oh, dear! There's really no time to lose." As he rushed along he bounced higher and higher as if to make up for their lack of progress. Billy stumbled after him bobbing his head up and down as he tried to follow the bouncing lights.

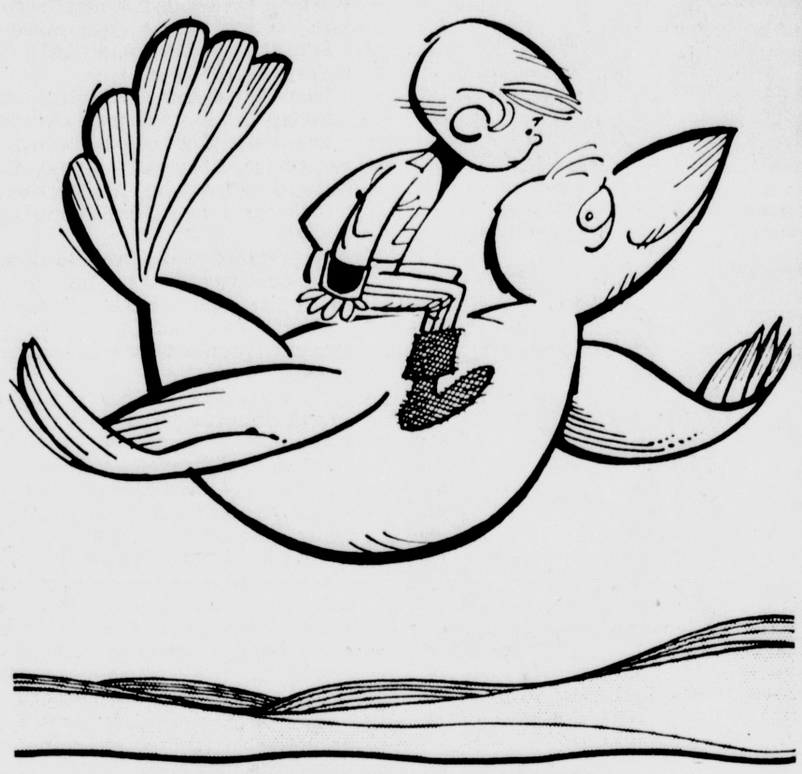

Suddenly the lights disappeared.

"Where are you?" cried Billy. "I've lost you!"

There was no answer. Billy ran back and forth calling frantically. He stumbled over a log and sprawled on the ground. Right beside his face were the two lights—very dim.

"Say something!" he cried. "What happened?"

"Gallomp!" was the reply.

..The airchoo bird rose gracefully into the air, carrying Billy.

Billy reached out and picked up a huge soft toad. Two lights blinked dimly inside the toad. Billy cried, "You ate the elfite! You horrible toad!"

"Not at all," said the toad giving a huge belch. "I was here in my own bed having a rather restless night. I opened my mouth to yawn and something hideous bounced in. I assure you I find whatever it is very indigestible and also a most extraordinary invasion of privacy."

All this time the two little lights inside the toad were going blink-blink-blink. Billy drew his wooden sword and held it over the toad.

"What on earth do you think you are going to do?" asked the toad in alarm.

"You'll see!" retorted Billy and he brought the flat of his sword down on the road's fat rear end. The astonished toad gulped, and his enormous jaw dropped open. The elfite bounced out and streaked away through the woods with Billy at his heels.

Fortunately daylight had now come and the elfite was able to find his way to a shrunken oak that stood in a nearby forest. Here the elfite stopped and said, "This is as far as I go. The airchoo bird will take you the rest of the way."

He knocked three times on the trunk of the tree. The branches parted and a small white bird fluttered to the ground.

"This is an airchoo bird," explained the elfite. "He can fly fast as an airplane and steady as a choo choo. He'll take you straight to Santa Land."

"But how can I ride him?" exclaimed Billy. "He's almost as small as you."

"Try and see."

Billy straddled the bird and a curious thing happened. Either the airchoo bird

Rose Bowl-bound Michigan leads Big Ten team selections

CHICAGO (AP) — Michigan's Rose Bowl-bound Wolverines, led by running back Rob Lytle and flanker Jim Smith, dominated the 1976 All-Big Ten football team selected by The Associated Press.

Smith, a repeater from last year's team, and Lytle were unanimous choices on offense along with running back Scott Dierking of Purdue.

Michigan landed four others on the offensive unit including quarterback Rick Leach, tackle Bill Dufek, center Walt Downing and guard Mark Donahue.

Rounding out the offense were tight end Mike Cobb of Michigan State, wide receiver Scott Yelvington of Northwestern, tackle Chris Ward of Ohio State and guard Connie Zelencik of Purdue. Illinois place kicker Dan Beaver was selected to the team for a second straight year.

While Michigan dominated on offense, cochampion Ohio State's Buckeyes, who will represent the Big Ten in the Orange Bowl, landed five players on the defensive team which included four repeaters from last year and four others who were unanimous choices.

The repeaters were tackle Nick Buomomici of Ohio State, end Blane Smith of Purdue and defensive backs Pete Shaw of Northwestern and Tom Hannon of Michigan State.

Unanimous choices were end Bob Brudzinski of Ohio State, tackle Greg Morton of Michigan and linebackers Calvin O'Neal of Michigan and Scott Studwell of Illinois.

The other three players on the defensive unit—all from Ohio State—were middle guard Aaron Brown, linebacker Tom Cousineau and defensive back Ray Griffin.

Selected as the punter for the second straight season was Ohio State's Tom Skladany.

Cousineau and Leach were the only sophomores to make the team.

Cardinals, Baltimore to meet in classic struggle

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

They say pro football games are won and lost at the line of scrimmage where defense and offense collide in an ultimate test of strength.

If that is true, then Saturday's National Football league battle between the the Baltimore Colts and St. Louis Cardinals should be a classic.

The Colts' defensive unit, affectionately known as the Sack Pack, has decked opposing quarterbacks a league-leading 52 times. But St. Louis' offensive line protects passer Jim Hart tenaciously and has permitted him to be sacked only 15 times all season.

So, it is the old story of the immovable object and the irresistable force. The winner of their rush-line confrontation also probably will be the winner of the game.

In Saturday's other game, Los Angeles entertains Atlanta with the Rams needing a victory to clinch the National Football Conference West title.

Pat Haden has taken over the quarterback job for the Rams and tossed two touchdown passes and ran for another score in last week's 33-14 victory over New Orleans.

In that game, Lawrence McCutcheon rushed for 116 yards, going over the 1,000 mark for the third time. His 4,140 career yards in four seasons is the second highest total in Rams history, trailing only the 5,417 Dick Bass gained in 10 years.

In Sunday's action, Buffalo plays at Miami, Houston is at Cleveland, Kansas City visits Denver, Pittsburgh entertains Tampa Bay, Chicago plays at Seattle, Dallas visits Philadelphia, Detroit plays the New York Giants, Green Bay is at Minnesota, New England is home against New Orleans, San Francisco is at San Diego and Washington plays the Jets at New York.

In Monday night's game, Cincinnati plays at Oakland.

Baltimore has clinched an American Football Conference playoff berth but needs one more victory or a New England loss to wrap up the East Division title. But the Colts' situation is not nearly as serious as the one St. Louis is in. The Cards are tied with Washington in the NFC East, but the Redskins have the edge by virtue of having defeated the Cardinals twice this season. The survivor of that battle is almost certain to get the NFC wild card spot.

The Sack Pack is led by tackle Joe Ehrmann, who has 11½ quarterback dumps to his credit, and ends Fred Cook and John Dutton, with 11 and 10, respectively.

Handling them will be the assignment of the Cards' offensive line, headed by Dan Dierdorf and Conrad Dobler. Occasionally, defenses have charged them with using less than legal tactics in their protection of Hart.

"Sure, it's embarassing when the referee calls a holding penalty and identifies you," said Dierdorf. "But it's more embarassing to turn around and see your man sacking your quarterback."

"I'll do anything I can get away with to protect my quarterback." Dobler said. "This is not a gentleman's game,"

Danny Murtaugh dead at 59

CHESTER, Pa. (AP) — Danny Murtaugh, who pledged to make his fourth baseball retirement his last so he could devote more time to the grandchildren he loved, is dead at age 59.

Murtaugh, who left the Pittsburgh Pirates just two months ago, slipped into a coma and died Thursday night after suffering a stroke two days earlier.

"In my younger years, I don't think I spent enough time with my children," said the sentimental Irishman when he quit in October.

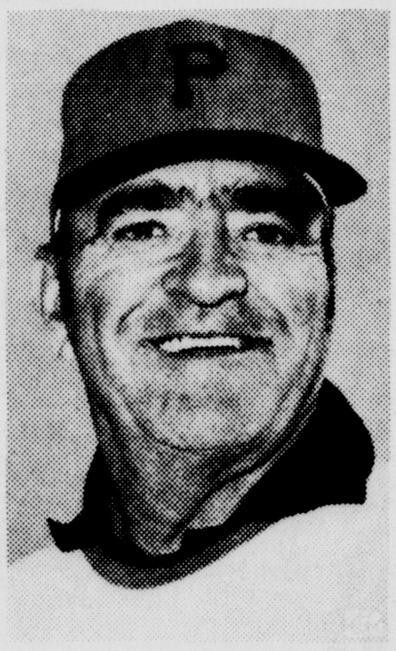

"I'm going to make it up with my grandchildren."

Murtaugh was stricken at his home in nearby Woodlyn Tuesday and taken to Crozer Chester Medical Center. The stroke was considered serious and his condition steadily deteriorated.

He had a 10-year history of heart trouble and his death followed what he said was a season of very bad health.

His friends in baseball mourned the fact that he would not get the chance to fulfill his retirement dreams: scout ballplayers in the warm and easy sun, smell the roses, and play with his grandchildren.

"He was a baseball man," said Cincinnati Reds Manager Sparky Anderson. "He liked it so much he came back to it when he shouldn't have."

DANNY MURTAUGH

Murtaugh is survived by his Kate, a daughter and two sons. His son Tim manages the Pirates' top farm club.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

The Point After

By MARK REA

Football season is finally over. The training, drills, games, and banquets have ended. Miami Trace has the county's fifth gold football safely tucked away in their trophy case.

But, are the 1976 Miami Trace Panthers the best in Fayette County history?

Miami Trace fans will obviously side with the Panthers while fans from Washington C.H. would put their money on the 1973 Blue Lions.

The similarities between the teams are amazing. Both went 10-0 and missed the post-season state playoffs. Both were rated near or at the top of the AP ratings when they had been unranked the year before.

Both teams won a South Central Ohio League gold football without any trouble.

Each team had an extraordinary offensive back. Panther quarterback Art Schlichter passed for 185 yards on his way to becoming the Ohio southeastern district "back of the year."

In 1973, Blue Lion Chuck Wilson rolled up 1,537 yards rushing and scored 184 points on his way to earning the honor as All-Ohio "back of the year."

The respective coaches, Fred Zechman and Maurice Pfeifer, were named southeastern district "coaches of the year" in their perfect seasons.

Both teams completed their season with big wins, the Blue Lions 58-0 over Hillsboro and the Panthers 60-13 over Washington C.H.

One individual had a big scoring game in those last contests. Lion senior Mark Johnson scored 34 points in his final game while Panther senior Rex Coe picked up 36 points in the last game in Trace uniform.

As much as the teams are alike, they are completely different in their winning philosophies. Miami Trace won their games with a high scoring offense. Washington C.H. won their games with a stingy defense.

The Panther offensive machine rolled 523 points this season, an average of over 52 points a game. They churned out 5,274 yards on offense, an average of more than 527 yards every Friday night.

They racked up 246 first downs, over 24 a game, and completed over 60 per cent of their passes, connecting on 106 of 169 passes.

As good as the Trace offense was, the Washington defense equalled it. They allowed only 19 points all year, an average of just less than a safety every game. They weren't scored upon until the third quarter of the eighth game.

They allowed only 704 yards offense against them while posting eight shutouts. They gave up an average of 42 yards rushing and just 28 yards passing per game.

As for great individual performances, the teams can boast a lot of them. Schlichter's passing percentage was a nifty 92-141-3 for 65 per cent and 1,685 yards. He also threw for 16 touchdowns.

Alan Coppock, the Lion quarterback, threw for 11 touchdowns and sported a percentage of 58-100-3 for 58 per cent and 947 yards.

Wilson carried the ball 237 times for 1,537 yards for an average of 6.5 yards a carry. Coe lugged the ball 111 times for Trace, gaining 1,007 yards for an average of nine yards per carry.

Larry Dumford of Washington C.H. led both team in season tackles with 107, followed by Garth Cox with 84 and John Sanderson with 81. For those who have short memories, Cox and Sanderson were the titanic linemen for the Lions in 1973.

All-stater Dennis Combs led the Panthers with 45 individual tackles followed by sophomore Glen Cobb with 39 and Tony Walters with 28.

Junior Bill Hanners of the Panthers led both teams in pass receptions with 40 for 802 yards. Johnson was Washington's leading receiver with 25 grabs for 509 yards. Hanners' average per catch was just over 20 yards while Johnson's was a little more than 21 yards a reception.

The Blue Lions landed four players on the all-state team while the Panthers landed six. Wilson was named to the first team in addition to gaining the back of the year award. Johnson was named to the second team while Sanderson earned a third team berth and Cox gained honorable mention.

Trace had Schlichter, Hanners, and Bill Warnock on the second team, center Sam Grooms on the third team, and Coe and Combs received honorable mention.

The coaches of the teams, as you might expect, are biased in their views of who the better team was. Former Blue Lion head coach Pfeifer said, "When we played them in 1973, they had a sign that said 'computers don't lie.' All I can say is that we finished 15th in the computer (poll) and they finished 18th. So, I guess they were right; computers don't lie."

Pfeifer also stated, "They (Miami Trace) can't make the claim that the reason they finished so low was because they are (Class) AAA. They had just as much of a chance to win the thing as we did." The Lions are classified as a Class AA school.

Panther head boss Zechman said, "Sure, we had a big offense and they did some big things but I think our defense went overlooked. Our defense was underrated the whole season and they only gave up 52 points."

"I think our defense could have held their (Washington's) offense and then our offense would have scored some points," said Zechman.

Pfeifer seemed to think that a game pitting the teams would be something akin to 1974's county struggle which the Panthers took 8-6.

Zechman thought the game would be more of an offensive battle, with the winner scoring about three touchdowns.

Both coaches admit that some of the players they coached in their 10-0 season were some of the best high schools players in Fayette County history.

The reason for all these statistics is so that you can make your own decision as to which is the better team. Certainly no one is in the position to say that the 1976 Panthers were better than the 1973 Blue Lions or vice versa. The arguments would go on forever.

But, if by chance the argument could be settled, members of the 1971 Panthers and 1952 Blue Lions are still around to argue.

Partial blindness forces decision

Class A coach of year resigns after season

By GEORGE STRODE
AP Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — "Hey, don't worry about me," said Denny Price, The Associated Press' Ohio Class A prep football Coach of the Year. "I don't deserve anything. Give the credit to the kids."

Price, only 32, has been forced to resign after a 9-1 season at West Liberty-Salem. A disease that causes partial blindness led to his decision.

"There were times this season when I couldn't even tell which players were ours on the field. I just felt that I'd be cheating the kids and the school if I remained. There's no know cure for the disease," he said.

For the coaching laurels, Price edged Jay Circosta of poll king Woodsfield, Gene Keel of playoff winner West Jefferson, Larry Humbert of Gnadenhuutten Indian Valley South, Bill Maltarich of Dalton, Jerry Widder of Marion Catholic and Morris Gullion of Piketon.

Oak Hill tailback Tim Williams and end Allan Young of Fairport Harbor Harding, the pair accounting for 45 touchdowns this season, are the Ohio Class A Players of the Year.

The selections were made with the recommendations of a statewide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Williams, a 6-foot-2, 170-pound senior, rushed for 2,090 yards, 22 touchdowns and 172 points in 10 games this season. He also completed six of 10 passes, kicked a pair of field goals and played safety.

Young, 5-10 and 170 pounds, was just as impressive in his senior year. He scored 23 touchdowns, 11 on receptions, 11 by rushing and one on a punt return.

Williams heads an impressive first-team all-state backfield.

Quarterback Tom Orosz of Fairport Harbor Harding figured in 23 touchdowns, 16 of them among 1,480 yards passing. He also rushed for 400 more yards.

The other running backs are Wayne Hairston of Summit Station Licking Heights, who piled up a Licking County record 1,627 yards in 10 games, and Gary Leeper of Jewett-Scio, with 1,383 yards.

Young is joined on the offensive line by ends Neal Seymour of Canal Winchester and Tony Sheppard of Newcomerstown, tackles Terry Gifford of Piketon and Chris Shisler of Lewisburg Twin Valley North, guards Tom Reffitt of Arlington and Rolie Devine of West LibertySalem and center Greg Gallas of playoff champion West Jefferson.

Defensive end Ross Shipley of West Jefferson and defensive tackle Tim Zetwick of playoff runnerup Ashtabula St. John lead the first-team defensive unit.

Their mates are end John Theiss of Albany Alexander, tackle Jim Beardsley of Berlin Center Western Reserve, middle guard Greg Hendricks of Fostoria St. Wendelin, linebackers Bruce Fields of Bluffton, Tom Puvogel of West Alexandria Twin Valley South, Mitch Naufel of Sandusky St. Mary's and deep backs Pat Riley of Ironton St. Joseph, Jeff Bumpus of Centerburg and Rick Booth of Newark Catholic.

Psychology helps Bullets

By The Associated Press

Pay attention now: Dick Motta is giving a class in sports psychology.

"The most dangerous thing is a 20-point lead," notes the coach of the Washington Bullets.

Why?

"When you get that far ahead," says Motta, "you have a tendency to let up, and you usually drop down to about eight points. By the time you build a big lead, you have spent yourself."

The lesson was dramatically put across Thursday night when Motta's Bullets had to pull out of a tailspin in the last quarter before posting a 102-90 National Basketball Association victory over the Atlanta Hawks.

Washington led 73-54 in the third quarter before Atlanta chopped the big lead to six points. But then Elvin Hayes helped the Bullets pull away.

In other NBA action, the Golden State Warriors outscored the San Antonio Spurs 124-116 and the Houston Rockets routed the Milwaukee Bucks 137-110.

Jimmy Connors beats Ken Rosewall, 6-2, 6-2

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Jimmy Connors has had little trouble against veteran Ken Rosewall in their recent professional tennis matches, and he easily overcame the Australian veteran in the $320,000 World Championship of Tennis Challenge Cup opening round.

Connors beat the 42-year-old Rosewall Thursday night, 6-2, 6-2 to continue his mastery over the tournament's oldest player and extend his Las Vegas record to 10-0.

Smart Shadow wins

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) I Smart Shadow captured the featured pace mile in the eighth race at Lebanon by two lengths in 2:09.4-5 Thursday night and paid $5.80, $3.40 and $2.40.

Carter margin grows as recount continues

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — With a recount of the presidential election in Ohio 95 per cent complete, President-elect Jimmy Carter appears to be assured of victory over President Ford, probably by a wider margin than was first reported.

Carter has added 1,753 net votes to his unofficial total, increasing his lead to 11,086.

"For practical purposes, it's over," Asst. Secretary of State James Marsh said Thursday. "We're not expecting any significant changes at all."

Marsh said tabulation should be complete by Monday so Secretary of State Ted W. Brown can certify Carter's 25 electors next Wednesday.

But also for practical reasons, Franklin County Republican Chairman Russell Leach said he "didn't have any plans" to call a halt to the recanvass before it is final.

Leach said it would be "impractical to try to get all 25" GOP elector candidates to agree that the recount should stop.

The secretary of state's office has complete reports from 77 counties and partial returns from eight, with three counties — Delaware, Harrison and Richland — still to be heard from.

In line with past trends in which unofficial winners pick up in recounts, Carter has added 1,661 votes while Ford lost 92, for a net change of 1,753 votes.

Meanwhile, an attorney for a loose-knit coalition which has filed a federal lawsuit to overturn the election on fraud charges, still hopes to prevent Carter's electors from taking part in the Dec. 13 meeting of the Electoral College.

Richard Reichel of Massillon said he would meet today with U.S. District Court Judge Joseph P. Kinneary.

Hypothermia danger noted

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Department of Natural Resources has warned outdoorsmen to be wary of hypothermia, which has already killed several sportsmen this season.

Hypothermia is a loss of body heat, usually caused by cold, wind, snow or rain, which causes the body's vital organs to cease functioning. It can occur at temperatures above freezing and, unless reversed, is fatal.

The department said the most recent hypothermia fatalities occurred on Mosquito Creek Reservoir in Trumbull County a week ago, when three duck hunters were dumped into the 34-degree water when their boat capsized. All three died.

"Hunters and fisherman should be aware that dizziness, disorientation, drowsiness and slurred and slow speech are symptoms of hypothermia," said Norv Hall, chief of the department's division of watercraft.

He said sportsmen with one or more of the symptoms should seek a warm shelter immediately and begin drinking hot fluids to warm the body.

Bellbottom trousers may make comeback

WASHINGTON (AP) — There's a glimmer of hope for sailors who long to go back to the Navy's traditional bellbottom trousers, jumper and white hat.

Adm. James L. Holloway III, chief of naval operations, has told the Navy's personnel bureau to take a new look at the uniform question, simmering since the old style was jettisoned a few years ago.

During Holloway's recent swing through the fleet in the Pacific, he heard repeated complaints from sailors about the new uniform of coats, shirts, black ties and peaked caps.

"Wherever he goes, Adm. Holloway gets asked about the possibility of getting back to the old uniform," a Navy source said.

Officials stress the personnel bureau's look is just preliminary to give Holloway information on probable costs of returning to the old uniform or some variation of it, and to determine accurately the extent of interest throughout the fleet in making such a change.

"Holloway wants to make sure it's more than a few guys who talked to him about it," the Navy source said.

A basic objection to the new style uniform, its critics say, is that it is a bother to keep it in presentable condition, particularly aboard smaller ships that lack cleaning and pressing facilities.

Sailors claim they don't have space to hang the new uniforms. The old outfits could be rolled up and stored in sea bags.

Some sailors, along with nostalgic ex-Navy men, say the bell-bottoms and the white hat made a smarter looking uniform.

And there are chief petty officers who complain that the distinction they once enjoyed when wearing coats and peaked caps disappeared when all enlisted men began dressing the same way.

The uniform change was ordered by Adm. Elmo Zumwalt Jr., when he was the Navy's top officer. Announcing his decision in June 1971, Zumwalt said he hoped to "enhance morale and present the concept of one Navy" with a standard uniform for all.

A period of about four years was allowed for a gradual changeover so that sailors would get used to the idea.

Apparently, many of them never did.

Seek to vacate sex conviction

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — An attorney has filed a petition in federal court that seeks to vacate defeated Rep. Allan T. Howe's sex solicitation conviction.

Lawyer Dean Mitchell said in the petition filed Thursday that pretrial publicity made it impossible for the Utah Democrat to receive a fair trial. The petition argues that the District Court judge who presided at Howe's second trial refused to sequester the jury or protect it from publicity.

Howe, arrested in Salt Lake City's red light district last June 12 and accused of trying to buy sex from two police decoy prostitutes, was convicted in a city court trial and appealed to District Court. A jury found him guilty again in a second trial, which began Aug. 23.

Howe lost to Republican Dan Marriott in the Nov. 2 election.

For annual Christmas parade

Santa to arrive in Washington C.H. Saturday

From queens to clowns, books to bands, and Santa Claus to the Christ Child, the 1976 Fayette County Christmas parade will offer something for everyone.

Scheduled to step out onto Columbus Avenue at 2 p.m. Saturday, the annual parade will a panorama of Christmas among its 60 units. To each person in the community Christmas means something different, and the parade will attempt to portray the many facets of the Yuletide season.

Saturday's weather forecast is encouraging for parade participants and viewers alike considering the recent cold spell. Temperatures are expected to move out of the teens to the high 30s with only a 20 per cent chance of precipitation.

Come rain, snow or cold, old St. Nick has agreed to once again visit Washington C.H. He will arrive on a float at the end of the parade and will take gift requests from children on the steps of the Fayette County Courthouse immediately following the parade.

Preceding the jolly gift-giver in the parade will be six floats entered by area churches.

Immediately behind the law enforcement escort vehicles and a color guard which head the parade will come grand marshal Joseph Peters, a Washington C.H. civic leader for many years. Although few area youngsters recognize the name, hundreds each year enjoy the Little League baseball program he helped initiate.

Closely following the grand marshal will be the Christmas royalty, a trio of young ladies who reign over the 1976 festivities. Snow Queen Pam Doyle, Miss Snow Princess Laurie Merritt and Little Miss Snow Princess Jackie Selig will ride a float sponsored by the Roller Haven skating rink.

A parade without marching bands would simply not be a parade, and three local bands will bring sounds of Christmas. Participating will be the Washington Senior High School, the Miami Trace High School, and the Washington C.H. Middle School marching bands.

Also competing for the crowd's undivided attention will be 13 commercial and 14 homemade floats. Six of the floats will be awarded $350 in cash prizes during the judging prior to the parade.

Along with the floats the parade will feature 12 marching units varying in size from six to 60 members. Led by veteran participant Johnny Peters, six clowns will journey the parade route distributing candy to young spectators along the way.

Prior to the parade and while waiting to visit Santa Claus afterward, parents are urged to take their children to the Carnegie Public Library bookmobile which will be parked along Main Street near Court Street.

Participants are reminded by the Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce to bring their lineup charts with them when the parade begins forming at 12 noon. Marching units will line up on Yeoman Street while floats will assemble on Willard Street. Both the streets will be closed to traffic Saturday afternoon and residents are asked not to park automobiles along the curb.

Parents should drop children off on Washington Avenue between Worley and McElwain streets or at the Washington Senior High School parking lot.

The parade's two columns will form one at Delaware Street and Columbus Avenue and proceed west on Court Street. As the parade draws to an end, marching units will turn left from Court Street onto Circle Avenue and march to McHenry Field. Floats will continue on Leesburg Avenue to the rear parking area at the Fayette County Fairgrounds.

Chiaramonte, Dollison in posts

Cook, Andrews replaced

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Highway Safety Director Donald D. Cook and Bureau of Motor Vehicle Registrar Curtis Andrews, who have been feuding over job performance, have been reassigned new positions by Gov. James A. Rhodes.

In their places, the governor today appointed retired Highway Patrol Supt. Robert M. Chiaramonte to replace Cook as director of the Department of Highway Safety and Dean L. Dollison to take Andrews' job as registrar of the motor vehicles.

Cook becomes project director of Operation Crime Alert and the Organized Crime Prevention Council. Andrews becomes deputy director for administration of the Ohio Department of Transportation.

The changes will be effective Monday.

Chiaramonte currently is project director of Ohio Crime Alert so it appeared he and Cook would trade jobs.

Cook last week suspended Andrews after making several departmental accusations against him.

Cook had accused Andrews of arbitrarily shutting off access to a law enforcement data gathering system daily after 5 p.m. and on weekends without his approval. He also said Andrews sought to impede a Highway Patrol investigation into fund shortages among deputy registrars and that he failed to take action against thousands of Ohio drivers who are driving after having had their licenses suspended.

Andrews said he answered all the charges made against him. He would not give details.

Rhodes, out of the state at the time, rescinded the suspension and ordered his aides to investigate the dispute.

Cook and Andrews met privately Tuesday with Rhodes' two executive assistants, Tom Moyer and Roy Martin. The aides have not commented publicly on the meetings but Cook said afterward he stood by his charges against Andrews.

In announcing the changes, Rhodes wrote Cook and Andrews a letter stating his conclusions about their dispute. In the similar letters, Rhodes stated:

—The highway safety director does not have authority to suspend the registrar.

—Michael M. Kiefer, a bureau employe, should be returned to his job as chief of the title division. He had been assigned other duties.

—Andrews did not violate or circumvent any law by discontinuing inspection by bureau personnel of vehicles entering Ohio for disposition;

—It appears that destroyed records did not include ledger sheets and there was no evidence any law was violated in destruction of other records of the motor vehicles bureau.

—Andrews should reinstate and work to improve 24-hour service of a system for law enforcement agencies to exchange information.

He directed Chiaramonte to begin developing educational programs on highway safety. He also asked Chiaramonte to review a system which law enforcement agencies in Ohio use to trade information.

Dollison, a former city councilman at Logan, is assistant to the director for administrative affairs of the Department of Transportation.

Rhodes directed him to work for passage of a bill sponsored by Rep. James L. Baumann, D-32 Columbus, which would centralize the annual issuance of license registration and license plate renewals. The bill follows similar recommendations by Andrews.

Duplication major concern

Help Anonymous to coordinate Christmas baskets for needy

The Help Anonymous information and referral service program in Washington C.H. will be coordinating the giving of Christmas baskets to needy families in the community this year.

Mrs. Marsha Davis, director of the Help Anonymous program, said the major concern in this year's Christmas basket program.

"We realize that perhaps you have a family you have been doing things for or know about and you wish to give them at Christmas. This is fine, we would just like to know who they are to make sure they are not on several lists to receive baskets," Mrs. Davis said.

Last year some families in the community received as many as five Christmas baskets. Many others received two baskets. Consequently, Mrs. Davis said one large organization which usually gives 10-20 baskets has discontinued the service.

"During a time of year when most of us want to think good, warm, happy, cheery thoughts about our fellow man, it is hard for us to deal with the fact that there are people who make a business out of getting baskets., Mrs. Davis noted. "They often call different groups to ask for baskets, give different names and addresses and therefore get several baskets. Most of us know people who could use more than one basket, however, there is just not enough to go around and we would like to see all who are needy have a nicer holiday," she said. Organizations wishing to donate Christmas baskets should telephone the Help Anonymous office (335-4144) and give the name and address of the family to receive the basket. Organizations are asked to deliver their baskets. The Help Anonymous office hours are 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The Help Anonymous office will provide organizations with names of needy families, will attempt to provide organizations with families to suit requests (size of family, gifts, toys), will keep a card on file on the names of persons receiving baskets and the donor and will attempt to prevent duplications.

Armco blames feds for steel price hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Armco Steel Corp.'s president contends federal regulation is responsible for part of this week's increase in steel prices.

The six per cent increase for sheet steel products which took effect Wednesday has been criticized by the Republican Administration and President-elect Jimmy Carter, a Democrat.

"Our price increases wouldn't have been as great if the federal regulation was not so heavy," said Harry Holiday, Armco president, who made the statement after a speech to a conference of businessmen sponsored by the American Management Associations.

In the speech, Holiday sharply criticized federal regulation, saying it is pushing up prices to consumers.

"There's no longer any doubt that regulation is the central working issue facing America today," he said.

"Unnecessary government regulation falls heavily and expensively on every individual person—man, woman and child—in the United States," he said.

He urged the businessmen in the audience to persuade consumers that federal regulation is hurting them.

"We must show each wageearner how much he pays for excessive regulation. We must demonstrate to each housewife the high cost of government interference," he said.

Holiday asserted that federal safety regulations "have not substantially changed safety in the steel industry. But it has contributed to costs."

In answering a question about the recent price increase, Holiday did not say how much of the increase was due to unnecessary government regulations. "There is now a study under way into exactly how much the regulation is costing," he said in apparent reference to a current study by the White House Council on Wage and Price Stability.

RESIDENTS of Willard and Yeoman streets are asked by the Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce to avoid parking along the curb Saturday. . .The absence of cars will eliminate any possible damage to vehicles while floats and marchers are assembling for the Christmas parade. . .

Homemade floats with their riders must be at the Washington Senior High School parking lot at 11 a.m. to be eligible for judging and the $350 in cash prizes. . .

There will be no parking along Court Street after 11 a.m. Saturday. . .This is to insure that spectators can view the parade without obstruction. . .Parking will be resumed immediately following the parade. . .

It is important that youngsters coming to see Santa Claus at the Fayette County Courthouse be orderly and well supervised to prevent any mishap on the steps. . .

A great deal of effort has been put forward by numerous individuals to make the Christmas parade a success, the Chamber of Commerce asks the cooperation of all area residents to make the parade enjoyable for participants and spectators alike. . .

AS OF Thursday, the Pennsylvania Highway Patrol banned travel in house trailers, mobile homes and all other such vehicles except semi trailer rigs on the Pennsylvania Turnpike. . .

The edict was issued because of reported high winds and snow squalls along the route, and state police said the trailer ban would remain in effect "until further notice," according to information received at the Fayette County Sheriff's Department.

But Carter declines to confirm choice

Cyrus Vance new secretary of state

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — Cyrus R. Vance, who served as Lyndon Johnson's world-traveling troubleshooter and tried unsuccessfully to negotiate an end to the Vietnam war in 1968, is the man Jimmy Carter has selected to replace Henry A. Kissinger as secretary of state, sources say.

Carter declined today to confirm the selection but said he wasn't denying the choice would be Vance.

"I wouldn't want to deny Cyrus Vance or anyone else at this point," he said in an interview on the NBC-TV "Today" show.

He was expected to announce the Vance appointment at a news conference later in the day. It will be his first Cabinet appointment.

Carter said he would announce two appointments at the news conference. The second is expected to be that of Atlanta banker Thomas Bertram Lance as his budget director.

The President-elect said he expects to complete most of his Cabinet choices by Christmas.

He said he has been concentrating so far on the national security area, including the State Department, the Pentagon and the National Security Council.

He also mentioned the Treasury as an early priority.

"I think that by Christmas I would have the Cabinet fairly well identified," he said.

Vance, currently a New York lawyer, was a house guest at the Carter home here earlier this week, and the visit stirred speculation that Vance would be named either secretary of state or secretary of defense.

The nomination is subject to Senate confirmation.

Vance, 59, held a variety of posts under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson and was a ranking foreign policy adviser to Carter during the president-elect's campaign for the White House.

A native of Clarksburg, W. Va., Vance was a Navy officer and is a lawyer. He took his first government assignment in 1957 as a special counsel to a Senate subcommittee headed by Sen. Lyndon Johnson.

President John F. Kennedy named Vance in 1961 as Defense Department general counsel and he later became Kennedy's secretary of the Army. Under Johnson, Vance was elevated in 1964 to deputy defense secretary, the No. 2 post in the Pentagon. He resigned the Pentagon job in 1965.

Johnson often used Vance as a world-roving troubleshooter. Assignments from Johnson sent Vance to the Mediterranean during Greek-Turkish disputes over Cyprus, to South Vietnam at the time the war there was escalating, to the Dominican Republic during that country's 1965 civil war, to Panama during the 1964 Canal Zone riots and to South Korea in 1968 to assess what appeared to be rising threats from North Korea.

Johnson then named Vance, along with Averell Harriman, as part of the first negotiating team sent to Paris for peace talks with North Vietnam in 1968-69.

In a September speech to a high-level group that will recommend U.S. policies toward world problems, Vance said the United States has a good chance to reach solid economic agreements with Third World nations.

He urged that the United States be "reasonably forthcoming" in its future dealings with poor nations.

Carter had indicated early on that he planned to name Lance as director of the Office of Management and Budget.

Cincy woman to use lottery money to pay medical bills

CLEVELAND (AP) — The $250,000 top prize in the Ohio Lottery's Pot O' Gold game has given Mrs. Clifford Poppe of Cincinnati a "beautiful" finish to a "rough" year.

Mrs. Poppe, a 63-year-old grandmother and owner of the Poppe Poodle Parlor, a dog grooming business in Cincinnati, said both she and her husband Clifford, 68, a retired electrician, have had heart problems in 1976. She said part of the prize will be used to payoff their medical expenses.

Mrs. Poppe added she plans to continue operating the business she started in 1955.

The Poppes have two sons and four grandchildren. "We really have a beautiful family and two lovely daughters-in-law," Mrs. Poppe said.

In the Lottery's Double Play game, James L. McCoy of Fairborn captured the big prize, $51,000.

Lottery officials said other Pot O' Gold winners were Morton L. Furman of Cleveland, $25,000; Russell S. Boda of Youngstown, $10,600; James S. Walsh of Cincinnati, $9,900; Terry W. Smith of Marion, $9,800; and Judith K. Martin, of Cincinnati, $9,700.

Other Double Play winners were Eleanor Palivec of Garfield Heights, $27,000 and James H. Stanley of Indianapolis, Ind., $10,000.

The winning numbers drawn Thursday night were:

Pot O' Gold: 19390 — 071 — 737.

Double Play: 315345 — 57706 — 777.

The color was red.

Equal sentencing by judges eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Criminal justice experts often complain when one judge consistently hands out light sentences, while another judge in the next courtroom always gives stiff penalties for essentially the same offense.

These critics say such disparity in sentencing is grossly unfair and may be a major reason the criminal justice system isn't very effective in curbing crime.

Now, the Denver criminal courts have become the first in the nation to test a new method of ending that disparity.

The Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, describing the project today, said judges in several other states are watching the Denver experiment with an eye toward applying it to their own communities.

On Nov. 15, Denver criminal court judges began testing carefully-devised guidelines to determine which offenders are released on probation, which ones are sentenced to work projects and which ones are ordered to jail, and for how long.

The guidelines are designed to take the guesswork out of sentencing, to state clearly what factors the judge will consider and what weight will be given to those factors.

Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi has proposed a similar system for the federal courts. Justice Department officials studying the issue have not yet proposed legislation incorporating Levi's proposal.

The LEAA, part of the Justice Department, dealt with the issue by awarding $348,000 to the Criminal Justice Research Center Inc. of Albany, N.Y., to draft experimental guidelines for nonfederal courts.

The project directors were Professors Leslie Wilkins and Jack M. Kress of the State University of New York at Albany and Dean Don Gottfredson of Rutgers University in Newark. About a dozen judges worked with the researchers during the two-year project.

The work yielded a set of formulas for measuring the seriousness of a crime against the offender's previous criminal record, his schooling and employment record and other factors that theoretically reflect social stability or the lack of it.

The formula was developed specifically for Denver. It involves awarding points according to the seriousness of the crime and the offender's lack of stability.

For example, an individual convicted of a particularly serious manslaughter would get 12 points for the offense. If he were a poorly-educated drifter with a long string of previous convictions, he would get 13 points on the stability scale. These points would mean a prison sentence of eight to 10 years. Ten years is the maximum in Colorado.

Another person, convicted of the same type of crime, might get a four-year sentence if he had no previous convictions and lived a stable life resulting in credits on the stability scale.

"The guideline sentences are in no way intended to be binding, mandatory sentences," the researchers said in a written report. "The judge as human decision-maker will still retain the discretion to override any suggested guideline."

Carter shrugs off B1 decision

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — President-elect Jimmy Carter said today the Pentagon's decision to begin production of the costly, disputed B1 bomber "doesn't really make much difference" in his consideration of whether to go on with it during the new administration.

The Ford administration awarded contracts on Thursday to start production of the warplane Carter once opposed, putting the incoming president in the position of having to cancel a project under way if he decides against it.

But Carter said in an NBC TV "Today" show interview that the administration's move will not affect his thinking.

"I still have adequate time after the inauguration" to decide whether to go on with B1 production, he said.

"I'll reserve the right as I did during the campaign to either proceed with it or use my influence not to proceed ...," Carter said.

He said if the administration had not taken Thursday's action he would have had to decide by February whether to authorize production. Now he has until May to decide whether to stop it. Carter said either timetable would have been all right with him.

"It really doesn't make much difference as far as I can see that the Defense Department went ahead ...," he said.

The Air Force awarded Rockwell International Corp., General Electric Co. and the Boeing Co. three-year contracts totaling $704.9 millon to build the first three B1s and prepare to build additional bombers. The total cost of the proposed fleet of 244 planes would be $22.9 billion.

Carter, who takes office Jan. 20, said during the campaign he saw no need to build the bombers now, without ruling out a possible change in his stand.

On Thursday, his press secretary Jody Powell said Carter will make a thorough review before making a decision. Powell quoted the president-elect as saying that the Ford Administration's approval of the contract was "completely consistent" with its previous policy.

Congress this year limited spending for the B1 production to $87 million a month through Feb. 1. By its action Thursday, the Pentagon approved a plan that would extend the limited funding until June 1, purportedly to give Carter more time to make his ultimate decision on the fate of the bomber. The government had previously invested $2.6 billion in development and testing of the B1.

Pentagon officials have said previously they expected Congress to go along with extending the temporary funding plan until June if Carter accepted that approach.

Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld, who announced the expected go-ahead after consulting with Ford, said the B1 was needed to counteract growing Soviet strength in strategic nuclear weapons.

Air Force Secretary Thomas C. Reed told a news conference, "It would be irresponsible not to initiate B1 production at this time."

The B1, about two-thirds the size of the B52 bomber, is a swing-wing, four-jet aircraft that is designed to fly between continents at supersonic speeds at high altitudes and then drop to tree top heights to penetrate air defense radar at high subsonic speeds.

It would be designed to withstand the effects of nuclear blasts and would be armed with air-to-ground missiles and bombs.

Besides the huge cost of the bomber, opponents contend it would be a waste because they say it is obsolete in the missile age.

Stocks show small gains

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices turned up in early trading today.

The opening Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was a fraction higher.

And advancing New York Stock Exchange issues held a slim lead on those declining.

As the session opened, the government gave the market two more bits of economic news to digest.

Unemployment rose in November to a seasonally adjusted 8.1 per cent of the labor force, the highest level this year, the Labor Department reported.

And wholesale prices rose .6 per cent during the month due to an .8 per cent rise in the prices of industrial commodities, the department said.

Early prices today included H.J. Heinz, up ⅜ at 29½; U.S. Industries, down ⅛ at 7⅛; and Standard Oil of Indiana, down ⅜ at 53⅝.

On Thursday, the Dow Jones industrial average fell 2.74 to 946.64.

Advancing issues on the New York Stock Exchange, however, held on to a 7-6 lead on those declining.

Volume on the exchange totaled 23.3 million shares, up from 21.96 million the day before.

The NYSE composite index of all its listed common stocks slipped .16 to 54.87.

And at the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .12 to 99.36.

Chinese shakeup plus for U.S.

TOKYO (AP) — Huang Hua, China's leading diplomat, has been named foreign minister in a government shakeup expected to buttress the policy of rapprochement with the United States.

Huang, Peking's U.N. ambassador since the Communist regime was admitted to the world body in 1971, replaces his old friend and longtime associate Chiao Kuan-hua.

The announcement of the change, broadcast today by Hsinhua, the official Chinese news agency, gave no explanation for the shift. But it was believed that Chiao was removed because he and his wife were close to Mao Tse-tung's widow, Chiang Ching, who is under arrest with three other leaders of the radical wing of the Chinese Communist party.

Huang's appointment was confirmed at a three-day meeting in Peking of the Standing Committee of the National People's Congress which ended Thursday. Hsinhua said other dismissals and appointments were made at the session, which was the first since the death of Mao. But the report gave no details.

Party Chairman Hua Kuofeng, Mao's successor, was still listed also as premier in reports from Peking. It had been expected that the committee session would ratify the transfer of the premiership to senior Vice Premier Li Hsien-nien.

Both Chiao, 68, and Huang, 63, were closely associated with the late Premier Chou En-lai's 1971 initiatives that brought President Richard M. Nixon to Peking the next year to end more than two decades of Chinese-American hostility. But Huang, untainted by association with the purged radicals, may have been regarded by Peking's new moderate leaders as better qualified to negotiate with the United States for full diplomatic relations.

The Hsinhua report gave no clue to Chiao's future. The man he replaced as foreign minister in 1974, Chi Peng-fei, had been rumored to be in disgrace but reappeared later as secretary-general of the congressional Standing Committee.

Huang, a native of Kiangsu province, was a star student at American-run Yenching University until he joined the Communist underground in the 1930s. During World War II, in Yenan, the Communist cave capital, he was Chou En-lai's liaison man with visiting American correspondents and the small U.S. military liaison mission.

He again became familiar to Americans as a tough and often abrasive negotiator at the prolonged Korean peace talks at Panmunjom and was Chou's spokesman at the 1954 Geneva conference on Korea and Indochina. Later he was ambassador to Ghana, Egypt and Canada before going to the United Nations.

Waldheim seeking new term in U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The 15 members of the Security Council begin private meetings today to work out arrangements for the election of the next secretary-general of the United Nations. Unless the Chinese veto him, Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim appears certain to be re-elected.

Waldheim, an Austrian whose five-year term ends Jan. 1., is one of two announced candidates. The other is Luis Echeverria, who relinquished the presidency of Mexico Wednesday.

Hamilton Shirley Amerasinghe of Sri Lanka, president of the General Assembly, has declared himself available in case the council cannot agree on anybody else and chooses him unanimously without a vote. Manuel Perez Guerrero, Venezuelan minister of state for economic and international affairs, and Carlos Ortiz de Rozas, Argentina's U.N. ambassador, were mentioned as outside possibilities.

Ion Datcu, the Romanian president of the 15-nation council, planned private, informal consultations to seek agreement on such details as the date for the council's first voting session, who will make up the list of candidates and whether to hold a separate ballot on each candidate or a single ballot on all at once.

Nine of the council members must agree on a candidate, who then is recommended to the General Assembly for its approval. However, any of the five permanent council members — the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain, France and China — can use its veto to block a candidate.

Diplomats familiar with consultations between Datcu and the other 14 members on Wednesday and Thursday said they believed Echeverria would get at least three votes — from China, Panama and Guyana — on the first ballot, and Waldheim would get the rest.

Sources purporting to be familiar with the Chinese view said China would vote for Echeverria because it wants a man from the Third World. But they said the Chinese would not block Waldheim.

Some observers said this meant that China, while voting for Echeverria, would abstain from the vote on Waldheim and let him get the recommendation for which he seems to have well over nine votes nailed down.

Others predicted that China would veto Waldheim on the first ballot and abstain on the next one so that he would be the choice. A third prediction was that China would keep vetoing Waldheim until the council agreed on another candidate.

The 10 non-permanent members of the council are Benin, Guyana, Italy, Japan, Libya, Pakistan, Panama, Romania, Sweden and Tanzania.

Carter plans peace move

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — President-elect Jimmy Carter said today he plans to send an informal message to Moscow expressing his determination to seek permanent peace and strategic arms limitation accords with the Soviet Union.

Carter said he would do so through unofficial channels in response to Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev's assurance that there will be no pressure from Moscow to test the new administration.

By saying it, in an interview on the NBC-TV "Today" show, Carter in effect did it. He said his message would be a reciprocal expression of dedication to peaceful relations with the Russians.

Carter also said that after his Jan. 20 inauguration, he plans to press aggressively for progress in the stalled strategic arms limitation negotiations.

Veterans aide nabbed with heroin

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP)— Ronald C. Garrett, 34, head of the Dayton, Ky. Veterans Assistance Programs, was held in lieu of bond after he was arrested at Greater Cincinnati Airport Thursday with $800,000 worth of heroin concealed in his hat.

Asst. Erlanger Chief Ken Yaden, director of the Northern Kentucky Narcotics Unit, said the arrest was made by local and federal agents as Garrett got off a flight from Los Angeles, Calif.

Brown team slated for state probe

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Atty. Gen. William J. Brown has rejected Gov. James A. Rhodes' proposal for the appointment of a "special independent prosecutor" to investigate scandal in the workmen's compensation benefit program.

"I told him I had my team already picked," the attorney general said Thursday. "I would not ask him to appoint a special governor when he had some tough things to do."

In a letter to Brown, Rhodes granted the attorney general broad investigative powers in advance of the Jan. 17 effective date of a workmen's compensation reform bill that gives Brown essentially the same authority. Brown asked Rhodes last month to take such action.

Rhodes' letter said, "I believe no means of prosecuting persons suspected of fraudulent activities should go unused.

"I am requiring you to appear for the state in the prosecution of any crimes pertaining to the payment of workmen's compensation benefits and fees, and to order a special grand jury to be summoned pursuant to your authority..." Rhodes added.

He also ordered Brown to take action for civil recovery of any money due the State Insurance Fund. Investigations by the Cuyahoga County Prosecutor and the Industrial Commission investigative unit have already yielded 100 indictments, many in connection with phony benefit claims, Rhodes noted.

"This language (in the letter) triggers the statute to give the attorney general the authority," Brown said. "I am very pleased with the governor."

But Republican Rhodes also told the Democratic attorney general: "In order that the authority granted you by this letter may be executed in a manner most conducive to impartiality, I request that you appoint a special, independent prosecutor to conduct the prosecutions."

That will not be done, Brown said. He has named an investigative team, headed by Asst. Atty. Gen. Stephen Fitch.

A special grand jury may be appropriate "down the line," Brown said, indicating his investigation had not yet reached that stage.

Rhodes said in his letter to Brown he had been "informed a great deal of the chief investigator's time has been spent in educating your staff as to what methods for investigation have been used to date and how to search for a fraudulent claim."

Brown said if briefing on a case he entered informally last month was considered "educational," then it was to be expected.

Drug-hunting dog makes his mark

WAYCROSS, Ga. (AP) — Blitz, a drug-hunting dog, developed such a reputation around Savannah that police moved him 200 miles to Waycross, where he's continued to earn his dog treats.

Drug squad officers took Blitz aboard Amtrak's Chicagobound Floridian train here Thursday night. The dog promptly sniffed out 137 pounds of marijuana worth an estimated $52,000, resulting in the arrest of four persons.

In the last six weeks, Blitz had helped Chatham County police arrest 38 persons on Amtrak trains passing through Savannah, and confiscate nearly 400 pounds of marijuana.

Trash collection service for Milledgeville studied

MILLEDGEVILLE — During a monthly meeting of the Milledgeville Village Council on Wednesday, a trash collection system for residents of the village was discussed.

David Thompson, owner and operator of Tidd's Refuse Service, of Jamestown, attended the meeting in an effort to coordinate trash collection dates throughout the village.

Thompson, who recently took over trash collection operations in the Milledgeville area, requested that residents notify him or Mrs. Helen Anderson (948-2575) of the times, on a weekly or semi-weekly basis, trash collection is desired. He may be contacted at 513-675-2791.

In other Milledgeville village council matters, a new street light contract slated for renewal with the Dayton Power and Light Co. was discussed, and various outstanding bills were paid.

Wednesday's meeting was continued until a later, as yet unconfirmed, date in December. The meeting was extended by council to allow for the final payment of all outstanding bills. It is also hoped that by the end of the month the proper papers required for the transformation of the Milledgeville Methodist Church property into village ownership will be complete.

The firm, a division of Wyle Laboratories, has been operated locally for 75 years, producing pipe-threading equipment and in 1963 was considered the second largest such manufacturer in the world.

Normalizing China relations

Upon his return from a three-week visit to China Sen. Mike Mansfield urged that the United States move quickly now to complete the hitherto slow process of normalizing relations with the country. A question of what constitutes the greater national good is involved in considering his position.

The Taiwan problem is the greatest obstacle in the way of normalizing U.S.-Chinese relations. The mainland Chinese government adamantly holds that settlement of this problem is strictly an internal matter. The step Mansfield advocates would thus almost certainly require the severance of defense treaty commitments to Taiwan which have been in force since 1955.

The question is whether our national interest would best be served by withdrawing from that treaty, or by clinging to it and perpetuating the present arm's length relationship with Peking. Mansfield argues for the former course. In his report to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee the retiring majority leader said: "Treaties are not forever."

This is not as cynical as it may sound. Implicit in the statement is recognition of the inescapable fact that patterns of relationship change as international circumstances change. To illustrate this one need only point to the fundamental alteration of U.S. relations with West Germany and Japan since the end of World War II.

Treaty commitments are not to be taken lightly. It must be recalled, however, that the pact with Taiwan was made at a time when Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist regime there was still widely perceived in this country as the legitimate government of China. Chaing's insistence that he would some day return to the mainland to take over did not seem to be entirely unrealistic. We were then in the midst of a deep freeze so far as relations with the Communist-led mainland government were concerned.

Circumstances have changed dramatically. In 1971 the Nationalists, having become less and less credible as the government of China, were expelled from the United Nations and replaced by the People's Republic of China. The Nixon visit in 1973 brought a resumption of contact with Peking after 22 years.

That bud has been slow to flower. There has been an exchange of diplomatic missions, and substantially increased trade, but that is about all. Senator Mansfield, who has been a student of China for many years, now concludes that normalization of relations should be completed with the least possible delay even if it means ending the Taiwan defense commitment. We concur in this.

THESE DAYS .... By John Chamberlain

Carter's nuclear power mandate

Like John F. Kennedy in 1960, Jimmy Carter is having trouble deducing a presidential mandate from a vote that was all too close. But the people spoke up loud and clear on one thing when they rejected, in the states of Arizona, Colorado, Montana, Ohio, Oregon and Washington, putting any further hobbles on atomic energy plants. The margin in the six states was roughly two to one, an approximate repetition of the pro-nuclear vote in California last spring.

To judge from some of his campaign statements, Carter may be lagging behind the voters on the subject of adding to our energy capacity by speeding our nuclear program. Not too long ago, to satisfy my personal curiosity, I visited the Babcock and Wilcox commercial nuclear loading facility in Lynchburg, Va. The one thing that distressed me about the plant was a pile of completed equipment in a corner that had been ordered many moons ago by the Florida Power and Light Company.

The litigiousness inspired by the anti-nuclear zealots had deprived Floridians of the use of a relatively cheap power source. Multiplied many times throughout the country, this sort of delaying action has prevented us from making an obvious response to the lords of the Middle East oil monopoly.

If the Naderite opponents of nuclear development were right about the probability of atomic disaster flowing from a plant "melt," there would be no argument against the sort of delays that have plagued the Florida Power and Light Company at one end of the Atlantic seaboard and the start-up of the Seabrook nuclear power plant in New Hampshire at the other. But the atomic record for safety over a 20-year period is most impressive.

During the whole period in which commercial nuclear power has been a reality, no atomic failure has resulted in a single injury to any power company employee. And no one outside a power plant has ever been overexposed to dangerous radiation.

Nobody would contend that atomic waste in general, or plutonium in particular, is something to be handled casually. But the scaremongering that goes on about plutonium has exaggerated its lethal menace out of all proportion.

Dr. Dixie Lee Ray, the former head of the Atomic Energy Commission, who will be the next governor of Washington, insists that botulinus toxin, for instance, is much more poisonous than plutonium. A teaspoon of botulinus toxin, she says, would be enough to kill 140 million people. A teaspoon of plutonium, on the other hand, would only be half enough to kill one person.

The risk from plutonium overexposure is cancer after some 15 to 45 years have passed. So nobody prejudiced in favor of longevity should treat contact with plutonium lightly. But other poisons, such as the toxins present in certain toadstools, can kill almost instantaneously.

One presumptive danger that could result from the overabundance of plutonium as a by-product of the operation of commercial reactors or the establishment of a "breeder" plant is that irresponsible people - or nations -might turn the lethal stuff into bombs. But the ordinary terrorist would hardly know enough, or have the requisite scientific organization at his beck, to make a "do-it-yourself-' bomb. If he did not produce a dud he would probably kill himself in the effort to make a useful explosive.

Dr. Bernard Cohen of the Institute for Energy Analysis makes the uncomfortable point that the access which terrorists have to dynamite or handguns or simple kitchen matches is much more of a menace that the possibility that they might succeed in hijacking a shipment of atomic waste.

We are already getting some 200 billion kilowatt hours of electricity from nuclear power plants. This is enough to service some 23 million households. What the public endorsement of atomic power at the ballot box means is that energy shortfalls by the end of the century are less likely. But if Jimmy Carter doesn't act on his one clear mandate the country will continue to shiver while the lawyers litigate.

CB sales flourish at record levels

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite a late summer-early fall sales slump, more citizens band radios will be sold this year than in the 18 years since the general public has been permitted to use them, an industry trade group predicts.

John Sodolski, an Electronics Industries Association vice president, said 1976 sales will total nearly 10 million sets, more than double the number of CB radios sold last year.

Retail sales of radios, antennae and other accessories should top $2 billion this year, he predicted.

Sodolski said there are nearly 20 million CB sets now in use. The Federal Communications Commission said it has issued 7.5 million licenses, with the rate of applications continuing at about 300,000 a month.

Many CB enthusiasts install units in both their homes and their cars to enable home-to-mobile conversations.

The industry expects CB sales to continue to climb next year, Sodolski said, due largely to publicity since the growth of CBs began in 1973, new features and the expansion of the current 23-channel CB band to 40 channels next month.

Recent FCC figures show about 70 models containing the new 17 channels have been approved for sale on Jan. 1 when the FCC channel expansion becomes effective.

Sodolski said only three million CB sets were sold between 1958, when CB radio as it is now known was created, and 1973, when a combination of factors triggered the current boom. Sales in 1973 exceeded one million, then more than doubled each year since then.

But the FCC expansion decision and its initial confusion, combined with the usual late summer sales slump and supply finally meeting demand, brought about a halt in the rising rate of sales in September.

Nevertheless, Sodolski said, record sales in the first half of 1976 and the expected resumption of sales in November and December is expected to result in the 10-million-unit sales this year.

Sodolski said he expects a shortage of the new 40-channel sets early next year because of FCC rules that prevent shipping the new units to retailers until Jan. 1, and because of some industry difficulty in meeting new FCC standards required to lessen CB interference with television and other broadcast bands.

Nevertheless, the FCC said last week that 79 models had been approved for sale and testing of others will continue to determine whether they meet the new FCC standards and can be sold to the public.

In 1830 Toledo was yet unborn, but Maumee and Perrysburg were havens for early Ohio travelers. New efforts to establish a town at the mouth of the Maumee, the site of Toledo, continued and by 1850 the city had a population of 3,829.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Show your love before it's too late

DEAR ABBY: I notice that readers sometimes ask you to print a letter again, but is there any one that has been requested more than any other?

CURIOUS IN BUTLER, PA.

DEAR CURIOUS: The big all-time winner was signed "TOO LATE" and here it is:

DEAR ABBY: I am the most heart-broken person on earth. I always found time to go everywhere else but to see my old, grayhaired parents. They sat at home alone, loving me just the same.

It is too late now to give them those few hours of happiness I was too selfish and too busy to give, and now when I go to visit their graves and look at the green grass above them, I wonder if God will ever forgive me for the heartaches I must have caused them.

I pray that you will print this, Abby, to tell those who still have their parents to visit them and show their love and respect while there is still time. For it is later than you think.

TOO LATE

DEAR ABBY: I have a suggestion that really works for people who are bothered by obscene telephone calls:

The minute you hear an obscene word, say, "Just a moment please," and walk away from the phone without hanging up. The caller will think you are coming back, but when he waits and waits and you don't return, he will tire of waiting and hang up. He can't break the connection because your phone is off the hook. This will make it impossible for the caller to use his phone to harrass other women. Also, he will never want to call you again and be deprived of his depraved fun.

OFF THE HOOK

DEAR OFF: Your suggestion will work, but while punishing the caller you are also depriving yourself of the use of your phone. Ma Bell recommends that you hang up immediately, and if the calls continue, to call the police who will undertake certain surveillance procedures in cooperation with the phone company.

It seems to me that the wisest course of action would be to keep your caller's line connected to yours (but not hanging up) and then go to a neighbor's phone to report the obscene call to both the phone company and the police.

DEAR ABBY: I was married to Jim eight years ago. We had two sons, then we were divorced. Two years later Jim married my younger sister. They had twin daughters.

My question: Are my sons and my sister's twin daughters just first cousins? Or are they more closely related?

NEEDS TO KNOW

DEAR NEEDS: Your sons and your sister's twin daughters are first cousins. But because they have the same father, they are half-brothers and sisters, which is a closer relationship.

The Voice in the Wilderness

"Prepare a way for the Lord; clear a straight path for Him." —Luke 3: 4

In John the Baptist we can see reflected the great tradition of Israel's patriarchs and prophets. Pilgrimage through the wilderness to the Promised Land is a chief recurring theme of Biblical literature. The Exodus experience became the focus of faith and yearning after Jerusalem's destruction by the hosts of Babylon. Isaiah with the prophetic voice of Moses called the captive and discouraged people to a new and wider vision of hope in God's promises. Through the desert and back to Zion, Jehovah would lead his ransomed people on a highway as grand as those of Imperial Rome. Jerusalem was rebuilt, yet new enemies conquered. God's pledge was still unfulfilled. Then came John, calling Israel to a spiritual pilgrimage of repentance and foretelling the time when "all mankind shall see God's deliverance."

Christian Advice Column offers new suggestions

Question: My son's life is in such a dreadful state that I don't even know how to pray for him. Can you give me any suggestions?

Answer: Yes, my suggestion is to picture your child as you want him to be. Imagine him as happy and healthy in every way. As you make this faith image, ask God to let you see him the way God sees him—perfect and whole.

Before a carpenter picks up his hammer, he has a picture in his mind of what he will make. The chair or cabinet or room exists in his imagination as a finished and perfect piece of work. An architect creates a building in his mind long before any actual work begins.

A story is told of an artist who admired a ramshackle building he passed each morning on the way to his studio. To the ordinary passerby the house with its tumbledown porch, loose hanging shutters, and broken windows was only an eyesore. But the artist's imaginative eye saw something different. He saw something beautiful.

Finally, he bought the house, moved into it, and began to make the improvements he had always dreamed of. Week by week and month by month the old building took on a new appearance. At last it was transformed into a gleaming white mansion of striking beauty and grace.

It takes practice to see the best in a person and the good in a situation. It's the way God sees us; it's the way love sees. I think parents have a gift for seeing the best in their children. And you may be the only one who can see you son the way God sees him—as he can become, his potential fully realized.

Acting out your prayer means believing that God, and God alone, will change your son. It means you realize you can't change him, and so you won't even try. It means seeing only the best in him and treating him not as he is now but according to your faith image for him. . .as the person he will become. This kind of positive prayer can free your son to be his real self. . .and empower him to become the man of your prayer.

Bride-elect honored at shower

Miss Diana Ford, bride-elect of Eddie Armintrout, whose marriage will be an event of Saturday, Dec. 4, was honored at a miscellaneous bridal shower in the home of Mrs. Donald Ford. Hostesses were her sister, Darlene and Mrs. Orville Clark, her aunt, and Mrs. Lewis Neff.

The decorations were in red and white, with a bridal couple in the center of the table. Games were won by Mrs. Nova Ford, Mrs. John Rockhold, Mrs. Izle Alspaugh, Mrs. Richard Castro and Mrs. George Hellenthal.

Those present were Mrs. Donald Ford and Mrs. Glenn Armintrout, mothers of the betrothed couple, Mrs. Nova Ford, Mrs. Gertrude Honaker, Mrs. Marjorie Ford, Miss Claudia Self, Mrs. John Melvin and daughter, Lisa, Mrs. Steve Dean and Sarah, Mrs. Rockhold, Mrs. David Ford, Mrs. Casto, Mrs. Hellenthal, Mrs. Mildred Newland, and Mrs. Alspaugh.

Those sending gifts were Mrs. Larry McCalla, Mrs. Lee Shonkwiler, Mrs. Ruby Lightle, Mrs. Gerald Stephenson, Mrs. Douglas Ford, Mrs. John Justice, Mrs. Ronnie Ford, Mrs. Jim Gossard, Mrs. David Overly and Mrs. Bobby Penwell Jr.

'Plants of the Holy Land' presented by Mrs. Brookover

Members of the Washington Garden Club motored to Wilmington Dec. 1 for the annual Christmas luncheon meeting. Table decorations in the private dining room at Duff's Smorgasbord consisted of favors made by the club officers who served as hostesses.

Roll call was answered by describing how a Christmas decoration had been made from something found in the members' yard or along the roadside. Items included pine cones sprayed with paint and glitter, teasel tree using a styrofoam cone as base, door swags of decorated evergreen trimmings, cone and seed wreaths and candle rings.

Following a short business meeting, Mrs. Gilbert Hooks, president, gave the month's helpful horticulture hint for gardens in winter. She described how to clean the garden after the ground is frozen by removing all annual plant material to prevent diseases remaining dormant on the soil. Cut tops off of mums and peonies, dress the soil around them and over the bulb plantings with bone meal and mulch with any clean material such as straw, ground corncobs, salt hay, peat moss, buckwheat hulls or leaves. Mulches used after a hard freeze prevents alternate thawing and freezing which leave plant roots upward and damage permanent plantings. Spring flowering bulbs may still be planted.

Mrs. Olive Brookover presented a program on "Plants of the Holy Land." Some of the plants she mentioned were the thistle, mandrake (loveapple), flax, garlic, shittah tree, gopherwood, lotus, manna, fags and bulrushes, Rose of Sharon, Cedar of Lebanon, Song of Solomon, saffron, pomegranate, olive, lily of the valley, tamarisk, gourd plant, coriander, cyprus, balsam, popular and oaks, all found in the Old Testament.

In the New Testament are found lilies, hyssop, mustard, spikenard, crown of thorns, aloes, myrrh, anise, mint and cummin and rue.

A Christmas gift exchange was enjoyed by Mrs. Hooks, Mrs. Jean Craig, Mrs. Herbert Dawes, Mrs. Oville Hurtt, Mrs. Donald Meredith, Dale A. Merritt, Mrs. Dale E. Merritt, Mrs. Brookover, Mrs. Margaret Willis, Mrs. Eulalia Wade, Mrs. Jesse Robinette and Mrs. Walter Wilson.

A decorated door swag will be made for the boy's dorm at the Fayette County Children's Home.

The club will not meet in January. The next meeting will be Feb. 2, when a covered dish noon luncheon will be enjoyed in the home of Mrs. Robert H. Wilson.

Good Hope church plans 'family night'

The annual "Family Night," sponsored by the Good Hope United Methodist Women, will feature a carry-in dinner at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 9, with a program at 8 p.m. at the church.

The evening will include decorating the Christmas tree with Chrismons, Christian symbols, songs and readings, explaining the Chrismons. Co-chairmen for the program are Mrs. L.C. Hoppes and Mrs. James Braun.

Carry-in supper to honor team

The young people of the South Side Church of Christ will be hosts at a carry-in supper in Fellowship Hall on Saturday, December 11, at 6:30 p.m. Invited guests include the Miami Trace Football Team, the Cheerleaders, and the Coaches and their wives. A program is being planned following the supper in recognition of the coveted No. 1 position the Panthers have achieved in the SCOL League, and the No. 4 rating in the State.

Friends and members of the Church are urged to attend to show appreciation to the team and those involved, for their hard work and dedication in putting Fayette County on the map once again.

Circle leaders honored

The Christmas meeting of the United Methodist Women of Grace United Methodist Church honored the circle leaders with 100 in attendance. President Mrs. Kenneth Warner welcomed and thanked everyone as she opened the business meeting. "Silent Night" was sung in unison and the ladies with December birthdays were recognized.

Officers and circle leaders gave reports. A total of $1676.80 was received from the "Talent Jar" project. Special UMW membership certificates and pins were presented to Mrs. Cloyce Copley, and Mrs. Robert Gatewood and a very special award and pin was presented to Mrs. C.L. Lewellen for serving 20 years as treasurer of the local UMW.

Mrs. Donna Wagner introduced the Rev. Phillip Brooks who presented a very entertaining program. He told a story in song about a Christmas journey and redeeming grace as he sang and played the piano for each selection. There was hymn from Mexico, a Dwight L. Moody evangelist hymn, "Amazing Grace", "I Would Tell You What I Think of Jesus," "I'd Rather Have Jesus then Silver or Gold," and "Come to the Waters".

The Rev. Mr. Brooks told how each hymn was written or used through the years.

The meeting closed with devotions on how to keep Christmas, reading of the Scripture and the Christmas story, ending with prayer.

Hostesses for the noon carry-in luncheon were the Jones and Wilson Circles.

Guest artist to appear

Miss Linda Roe of Chillicothe, will appear with the Cecilian Chamber Music players in the Washington Organ Club's Advent Recital at 3 p.m. Sunday, in First Presbyterian Church. THIS FLUFFY OMELET is a snap to make. It is deliciously flavored with spoonfuls of deviled ham and Mozzarella cheese.

Entertain on the spot with these mouth-watering snacks

ENTERTAIN ON THE SPOT

One of the trickiest situations in your busy fall schedule is that occasion when you and your guests arrive home at the same time. Returning from a long day spent working on a political campaign, a late night movie or that important football game, you all squeeze through the front door together. If you are groping for elegant but relatively effortless food ideas, don't fret! Dazzle your guests with a last minute wizardry of these mouth-watering snacks. They are very simple to prepare, requiring about 15-20 minutes from start to finish. And they make imaginative use of many ingredients a good cook keeps handy - eggs, cheese, onions, and convenient canned meat spreads.

Don't be afraid to tackle an omelet in front of guests. Try this version of a classic Italian dish, Deviled Ham Frittata. It's a scrumptious, thick omelet that literally cooks itself. No delicate folding is required - a last five minutes in the oven sets the eggs. This fluffy mixture is seasoned with onion, green pepper, Mozzarella cheese and spoonfuls of deviled ham. The lovely thing about omelets is that last minute additions of whatever you may have on hand serves to make them that much more creative! Add a tossed salad with a wine vinegar dressing and crusty Italian Bread (a loaf kept in the freezer will defrost deliciously in the oven in a few minutes). Suddenly, you have a fancy latenight supper with a minimum of fuss.

On a more casual note, try Hot Chicken-Berry Wiches. Spread one slice of bread with a crunchy filling of chopped celery, walnuts and chunky chicken spread and the other with whole cranberry sauce. Put together and dip the whole think in an egg mixture. Grill for a flavorful French toast finish. Or surprise guests with the hearty taste of Beef 'n Cheese Biscuits. Hot baked biscuits (the refrigerated type) are split and filled with sliced tomato and roast beef spread, then sauced with Cheddar cheese soup.

DEVILED HAM FRITTATA

6 eggs
2 tablespoons milk
2 tablespoons chopped onion
2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 can (4½ ounces) deviled ham
½ cup grated Mozzarella cheese

Preheat oven to 450 degrees F. In a bowl, beat together eggs and milk. Stir in onion and green pepper. Melt butter in an 8-inch skillet over low heat. Tilt pan to coat bottom and sides evenly. Pour in egg mixture. Drop deviled ham by teaspoonfuls into egg mixture. Cook 10 minutes. Sprinkle cheese on top and place in oven 4-5 minutes until cheese is melted and egg mixture is set. Makes: 4-6 servings.

HOT CHICKEN — BERRY WICHES

1 can (4¾ ounces) chunky chicken spread
2 tablespoons chopped celery
2 tablespoons chopped onion
2 tablespoons chopped walnuts
8 slices white bread
1 can (8 ounces) whole berry cranberry sauce
2 beaten eggs
3 tablespoons milk
2 tablespoons butter or margarine

In a bowl, mix together chicken spread, celery, onion and walnuts. Spread evenly on four slices bread. Spread cranberry sauce on four remaining slices bread and close sandwiches fitting sides together. In a shallow bowl beat eggs and milk together. In a skillet, melt butter over medium high heat. Dip sandwiches in egg mixture. Brown 6 - 8 minutes turning once. Makes: 4 sandwiches.

Ohio may escape $60 million loss

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — With two minor regulation changes, Ohio apparently will be able to avoid a threatened loss of $60 million in federal welfare funds, the State Controlling Board was told Thursday.

Clyde Downing, Chicago regional director of social and rehabilitation services for the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, gave that word in what turned out to be an amiable confrontation between federal and state officials.

Robert F. Howarth Jr., controlling board president, and other fiscal officials breathed a collective sigh of relief although some negotiations remained between Downing and Welfare Director Kwegyir Aggrey.

Howarth said he was confident the disputes involving state and federal welfare regulations will be resolved by next Monday.

Aggrey and other officials had advised the board Nov. 24 that Ohio stood to lose $60 million in federal matching funds because new HEW regulations, adopted July 1, overrule certain parts of the formula the state uses for reimbursements to nursing homes for welfare recipients' care.

The admonition chilled state financial planners already scraping to get Ohio through its current period of low revenue months to the end of the fiscal biennium next June 30. Downing confirmed Thursday that the $60 million loss was a possibility, but only if the department refuses to change the two regulations.

Otherwise, the regulations expected to be disallowed in an upcoming HEW audit, the federal official said, permit the payment of profit allowances based on operating costs of nursing homes, and allow other supplemental payments keyed to depreciation of property and equipment.

Downing recommended that in order to avert the loss of funds, or at least a major portion, the profit allowance should be pegged strictly to the net capital investments of the nursing home operators. He had no objections, he said, to the amounts of the present profit allowances—up to $1.50 a day per patient.

Downing said, with regard to the depreciation allowances, HEW objects only to the fact that the payments are set arbitrarily at $4.50 a day for homes licensed since 1968, $3.50 a day for those licensed between 1958 and 1968, and $2.50 a day for those licensed prior to 1958.

HEW is willing to go along with the depreciation regulations if they are specified as ceilings, allowing flexibility to approve lower amounts, he said.

Howarth said late Thursday that Aggrey and Downing already were meeting to resolve the questions, and he quoted Aggrey as saying an agreement should be ready for controlling board review at its meeting next Monday.

Downing actually wound up praising Ohio at Thursday's special meeting, saying it was "in the forefront" among most other states seeking to comply with the new federal regulations.

Minor accident probed by police

Only one traffic accident was reported by area law enforcement agencies on Thursday.

According to Washington C.H. police officers, a car driven by Brenda L. Hart, 18, of Leesburg, incurred slight damage when it struck a cement guard beside gasoline pumps on the Stop-N-Go parking lot, 19 Fayette Center.

There was no damage to the fixed structure as a result of the 5:34 p.m. Thursday accident, police officers said.

When the federal government decided it could not maintain the National Road it was turned over to the states by sections and in 1928 Ohio and Pennsylvania passed laws for maintenance and accepted completed portions in 1831 and 1934. —AP

HALLANDALE, Fla. (AP) — It may be only a bite-size snapper or maybe an 800-pound tuna. But if it is a prize ocean catch of a tourist fisherman, it may be worth the hundreds of dollars to stuff it for display.

More than seven million salt water fishermen visit Florida's sunny shores each year. And the demand to preserve prize catches of marlin, shark, sailfish and bluefin tuna is so great that marine taxidermy has grown to be a multi-million dollar industry.

When a vacationing fisherman leaves his treasured tuna or snapper, it is a slimy, dripping carcass, probably suspended from a hook at a marina. The next he sees it, some two-to-six months and a few hundred dollars later, the fish is brightly painted and firm, ready to hang above a fireplace or office desk.

A sting ray with a six-foot wing span might cost almost $400 to mount. A 12-foot marlin goes for more than $900 at one local taxidermist. And a one-to-10 inch snapper can be processed for less than $100.

The three or four major marine taxidermists in the state make their money by turning out a product as similar to the real thing as possible. But most fish mounts utilize no more than the thin skin from the live fish. Other mounts don't even use the skin but rely on fiberglass.

At one major taxidermist, who has 5,000 to 7,000 fish in different stages of processing each day, a fish starts its journey on a skinning room floor, blood dripping from gaping mouth.

The hollow-skin process of taxidermy has no use for the insides of the fish, so just the paper-thin skin is preserved through a chemical curing procedure. The curing, to dry up the skin oils, takes from two days to two weeks, with oilyskinned tarpon taking even longer.

The fish resembles a deflated balloon now, so it must be reshaped in a fiberglass mold and stuffed with a burlap-plaster mixture and later sawdust, which is removed.

Damaged fins are repaired or replaced with pasteboard or plastic, and the fish is ready for its new eyes.

A little sanding, a little touch up, and the fish is ready for painting, a multi-step process that begins with three different primers "just like an auto," said a spokesman.

Final painting follows a chart at the taxidermy to ensure that shiny black manta rays have white bellies and cowfish have spots before they leave the shop for drying and shipping after four months or so.

But not all of the fish brought to be stuffed are prize ocean catches, said Jesse Webb of the Hallandale firm.

"Someone brought us a 2½inch goldfish, which had been a family pet for seven years. No doubt, that is the smallest fish we ever mounted."

TV Viewing

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Methinks cries of outrage will come from senior enlisted men and officers in the National Guard and Reserves if they see tonight's NBC News Special, "The Sometimes Soldiers."

It's a valuable look at what some call "weekend warriors," the 800,000-member force of citizen-soldiers, sailors and airmen who'll back up America's regular military troops in time of national emergency.

And it gives the impression that many Guard and Reserve units — save those in aviation — spend much time killing time on weekends, waste tax dollars and generally aren't ready to go into combat quickly.

A kibitzer, a naval aviation reservist who sat behind me at an advance screening, was moved to say the show is unfair, that "it doesn't show the positive side of what we do."

He said members of his Navy unit work their fantails off when they train on weekends and while on active duty.

Well, his gang may be ready for anything. But other units? And are most of them so combat-ready that if the President says "go" they can move out in terms of hours and days, not weeks and months, and constitute an effective fighting force or part of one?

This is what "Sometimes Soldiers" tries to examine. And the issue is crucial, now that there's no draft swelling the ranks of the regulars and heavy reliance is placed on the Guard and Reserves.

In the absence of the draft, a fresh look at weekend warrioring is particularly worthwhile, even if it rehashes old ground — inefficiency, political influence, lack of training and duplication of functions. And all this comes out in tonight's show.

It may prod fresh thinking about America's military reserves, both among the citizenry and on Capitol Hill. Which is all to the good. The subject should be examined and re-examined.

However, I do wish producer-writer Bob Rogers or reporter Ford Rowan had gone more into whether the units shown are in the Pentagon's view, ready for call-up and combat and can do the job.

Much time was spent hearing lower-ranking enlisted reservists griping that they had nothing to do, that it's all a waste of time.

The point is made. But I recall having similar gripes 13 years ago while a drafted guest of the Regular Army, helping defend Ft. Benning, Ga., against all enemies Northern and domestic.

NEW YORK (AP) — Henry Morgan's ex-wife, Isabelle Gibbs Morgan, has been granted a court order directing the comedian to show cause why money for two books he has written should not go for back alimony.

Elizabeth Ray avoids reporters

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Elizabeth Ray, in town to audition for a role in the Union Plaza Hotel's new production, "Hanky Panky," refused to be photographed or to speak with reporters invited by hotel officials to see her.

Miss Ray, now appearing in a play in Chicago, sat in a Union Plaza showroom booth Thursday and refused to go on stage for her audition until reporters and photographers left. She said she didn't want to answer any questions.

Rep. Wayne Hays of Ohio resigned his House seat after Miss Ray said she was put on his staff payroll only to provide sexual favors.

Ohio Perspective

Demo majority gets challenge

By ROBERT E. MILLER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Michael J. Maloney, who heads the Senate Republican leadership team in the upcoming session of the legislature, had laid some sobering challenges at the door of the Democratic majority.

At the same time, the onetime Statehouse newspaper reporter believes minority Republicans can play a viable role, and says they are willing to cooperate with Democrats in solving what he termed very difficult problems.

Maloney, R-7 Cincinnati, a 47-year-old father of five, will be in his second, two-year term as minority leader, and embarking on his 13th year as a senator. He is acknowledged among lawmakers as an expert on tax matters, and was chairman of the important Senate Ways and Means Committee when Republicans lost control of the upper chamber in 1974.

Serving with Maloney on the Senate GOP leadership team will be veteran Sen. Paul E. Gillmor, R-2 Port Clinton, as assistant minority leader, and Sen. Thomas A. Van Meter, R-19 Ashland. Like Maloney, they have undenied ambitions for statewide office.

Maloney has been mentioned as a possible candidate in 1978 for secretary of state or lieutenant governor, Van Meter for lieutenant governor, and Gillmor as a possible candidate for attorney general—a race the Port Clinton lawyer almost ran in 1974.

Right now, however, they realize they have their hands full trying to make their voices heard in a legislature voters made veto proof against GOP Gov. James A. Rhodes in the Nov. 2 election. Only 12 Republicans serve in the 33-member Senate.

Maloney sounded much like Rhodes in his projections for the 1977-1979 session in a recent Columbus speech.

He listed the state's economy as the priority item, and singled the loss of industry and jobs as the most important problem the lawmakers will face when they convene on Jan. 3.

Along that line, he mentioned tax changes to help retain industry and bring news ones into Ohio. He said a 1976 enactment, heralded as one that would aid industry, in effect, wound up increasing their obligations in tangible personal property taxes by about $38 million.

He also said the state has no energy policy after about three years of haggling, although bills by members of both parties have been offered. Maloney said the fact that people are leaving Ohio faster than any other state "to go where the jobs are" compounds the problem further.

Maloney said that while the state's two-year budget is going to be tough "there are some corrollary issues." He said he doesn't take the tack that Ohio is hopelessly caught up in the national economic picture. "There are some things we can do, some new commitments we can make," he said.

On three felony charges each

Two indicted by grand jurors in jail escape attempt case

Two inmates of the Fayette County Jail, who were allegedly involved in an escape attempt on November 18, were each indicted on three felony charges Thursday by a session of the Fayette County Grand Jury.

James Radcliff, 21, of Delaware, and Donald Bock, 19, of Sabina, were indicted on charges stemming from an unsuccessful prison break during which Fayette County Sheriff's Deputy Thomas E. Rodgers was injured.

Radcliff was charged with aiding an escape, escape, and felonious assault. Bock was indicted on charges of aiding an escape, complicity in an escape, and complicity in felonious assault. He was also indicted on counts of breaking and entering and grand theft, relating to alleged October 7 incidents in which Bock reportedly stole an automobile and burglarized a county school building.

According to Fayette County Sheriff's Department personnel, Radcliff, who was being detained for violation of a Fayette County Juvenile Court order, and Bock planned to overpower jailer-dispatcher Rodgers and escape. However, Rodgers was able to overpower Radcliff and call for assistance, Sheriff Donald L. Thompson said.

Washington C.H. Police Sgt. Robert Massie and patrolman Anthony Wilson responded to Rodgers' call for assistance along with Sheriff Thompson who was in the northern portion of the county.

The alleged early-morning jail escape attempt resulted in injury to Rodgers, who was treated and released from Fayette County Memorial Hospital after the prisoner was again secured.

According to the report, weapons used to strike Rodgers were made from cleaning equipment used at the jail.

Three other persons were indicted by the grand jury on Thursday.

Jackie Garrison, 32, of 604 S. Elm St., was indicted for felonious assault stemming from an early Monday morning incident during which he allegedly assaulted another person during a domestic altercation. He was arrested by Washington C.H. police officers.

Crystal D. Jackson, 18, of Martinsville, arrested Nov. 22 after an investigation by members of the Fayette County Sheriff's and Washington C.H. Police departments, was charged with three counts of check forgery. Her husband, Charles, was indicted on three counts of complicity in check forgery.

The alleged forged checks were reported to have been passed during October at a market in Bloomingburg, and two Washington C.H. businesses.

An unusually severe arctic outbreak plunged southward into Ohio Thursday, tumbling low temperature records across the northern part of the state, but the cold air mass was to begin moving out today.

Temperatures began rising a little in the western part of the state today, and slowly rising temperatures were likely through tonight and Saturday.

There is a chance of light snow in the northern part of the state tonight, but it should end Saturday morning.

Low temperature records for Dec. 2 were broken just before midnight and then more records were broken early this morning.

County fair dates okayed for 1977

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Dates for the 1977 Fayette County Fair have been approved by the Ohio Department of Agriculture.

The 1977 Fayette County Fair will be held from Sunday, July 24 to Saturday, July 30.

Dates approved for neighboring county fairs include Clinton County, August 8-13; Greene County, August 1-6; Highland County, September 6-10; Pickaway County, July 31-August 5, and Ross County, August 8-13.

"It is a pleasure to release the dates of the fairs," said John M. Stackhouse, director of the Ohio Department of Agriculture. "Our independent and county agricultural fairs are one of the most important community activities in which people of all ages are involved. From unofficial estimated reports, Ohio's local fairs enjoyed a record attendance this past summer of over five and a half million," Stackhouse reported.

It was noted that the junior fair participation has continued to grow at a record pace. Nearly 1,800 young people exhibited a record 2,500 projects per fair this year. Over a five-year period the number of young people exhibiting increased nearly 20 per cent and the number of junior fair exhibits grew over 30 per cent during the same period.

"One of the most unique aspects of the fairs is the fact that thousands of volunteers work behind the scenes to make Ohio's 95 county and independent fairs the greatest in the nation," Stackhouse said. "There are over 1,800 elected fair board directors who serve for little or no pay year after year. In addition, there are thousands of advisors and counselors of youth organizations who devote extensive time and effort in helping young people learn about and appreciate the thousands of different kinds of projects exhibited at the fairs. There are numerous other individuals and groups who deserve praise for their contributions to the success of the 95 fairs. Some of those include local and state governmental officials, representatives of the news media, educational and business leaders and civic organizations," Stackhouse concluded.

Urge stable sugar prices for future

WASHINGTON (AP) — With world sugar stockpiles rising and prices down from the record levels of 1975, pressure is growing for congressional action to stabilize prices and assure a constant supply for consumers in the future.

The Agriculture Department says U.S. sugarbeet producers, particularly, have suffered from widely swinging prices and competition from foreign sugar on the domestic market. Growers may be on the verge of cutting back sharply on 1977 production.

"Prospective large world supplies are likely to maintain downward pressure on sugar prices in the short run, unless there are some cutbacks in next year's world sugar crop," the department's Outlook and Situation Board said this week.

"Producers will be watching for new U.S. executive or legislative action or a new international agreement that would enhance prices," the board said in a report.

Other analysts in USDA quote trade sources as estimating that American sugarbeet farmers may cut 1977 plantings 15 to 25 per cent from this year.

On a world basis, a record sugar harvest this year is expected to total nearly 96 million short tons (2,000 pounds each), up almost six million tons from 1975. This is in excess of world requirements and thus means "world stocks will rise substantially" by the time another crop is ready next year, the report said.

Firemen check gas fume case

Washington C.H. firemen investigated a gas fume complaint at a local residence Thursday.

Firemen said that fuel oil spilled onto a sewer line pumper unit was the apparent cause of gas fumes in the John R. Skinner residence, 437 Broadway St., at 8:56 p.m. Thursday.

Letters to Santa

Dear Santa Claus,

My name is Christi Lynn Snyder and I am four-years old. My mommy is writing this for me since I don't know how to write very well yet. I have tried to be good for mommy and daddy but it is sometimes awfully hard.

For Christmas I would like a Baby Boo Hoo and some new books for daddy to read to me and any other toys you want to bring me.

My little brother Craig would like a cycle and some new cars and trucks. We will leave you some cookies and milk to eat on Christmas Eve.

Dear Santa,

I love you. I've been good all the time. I am five years old. How old are you, Santa? When you come to my house, come into my room and wake me up. You can bring Rudolph inside my house if you have him with you. Please let me pet him.

I would like to have these toys, please: A car with a key, a doll that says "mommy and daddy", a perfection game, Playdough ice cream truck, Jaws game, Dusty and Nugget, a Lassie dog and a doll stroller.

Santa, Victor doesn't know if you are real, or not. He doesn't even know if the Easter Bunny is real. I thing that the Easter Bunny is real and that you are real too.

I'm going to leave you Christmas cookies and holiday hearts to eat. I'll leave all the reindeer something to eat too. I'll leave you hot chocolate to drink. Your reindeer can get a drink out of the pond. I'm going to make a Christmas for you.

Santa and the Giant Fighter

Synopsis: An elfite persuades the boy who believes in giants to go to Santa Land and fight the giant who has captured the Fairy Queen.

THEY MEET A TOAD

It's a very long way to Santa Land and very few people know the way.

William Henry Christopher Preeserve—now known as Billy the Giant Fighter—was glad he had the elfite to guide him because even with directions he was sure he would never find his way.

It was very dark. At first this was no problem because the elfite wore earmuffs and each muff had a little light attached to it. All Billy had to do was follow the twin lights bouncing ahead of him through the woods.

But after a while even the elfite appeared to be lost. "Of course it would be much easier if we had the moon," he complained. "But since Goko the giant has stolen it out of the sky everything is all mixed up and there's no telling where we might end up."

They went north, east, west and south. They seemed to be going in circles and the elfite hurried along muttering, "Oh, dear! There's really no time to lose." As he rushed along he bounced higher and higher as if to make up for their lack of progress. Billy stumbled after him bobbing his head up and down as he tried to follow the bouncing lights.

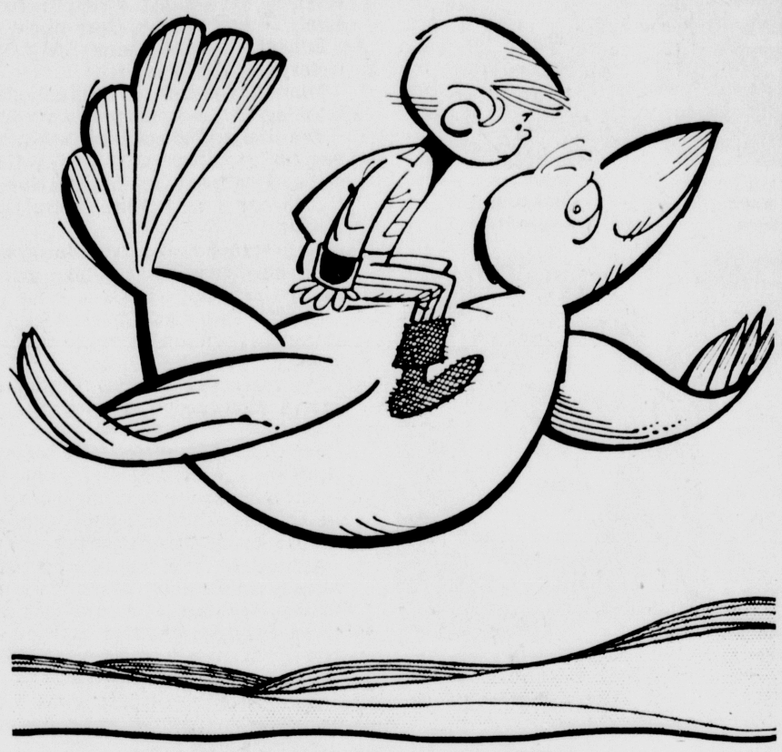

Suddenly the lights disappeared.

"Where are you?" cried Billy. "I've lost you!"

There was no answer. Billy ran back and forth calling frantically. He stumbled over a log and sprawled on the ground. Right beside his face were the two lights—very dim.

"Say something!" he cried. "What happened?"

"Gallomp!" was the reply.

..The airchoo bird rose gracefully into the air, carrying Billy.

Billy reached out and picked up a huge soft toad. Two lights blinked dimly inside the toad. Billy cried, "You ate the elfite! You horrible toad!"

"Not at all," said the toad giving a huge belch. "I was here in my own bed having a rather restless night. I opened my mouth to yawn and something hideous bounced in. I assure you I find whatever it is very indigestible and also a most extraordinary invasion of privacy."

All this time the two little lights inside the toad were going blink-blink-blink. Billy drew his wooden sword and held it over the toad.

"What on earth do you think you are going to do?" asked the toad in alarm.

"You'll see!" retorted Billy and he brought the flat of his sword down on the road's fat rear end. The astonished toad gulped, and his enormous jaw dropped open. The elfite bounced out and streaked away through the woods with Billy at his heels.

Fortunately daylight had now come and the elfite was able to find his way to a shrunken oak that stood in a nearby forest. Here the elfite stopped and said, "This is as far as I go. The airchoo bird will take you the rest of the way."

He knocked three times on the trunk of the tree. The branches parted and a small white bird fluttered to the ground.

"This is an airchoo bird," explained the elfite. "He can fly fast as an airplane and steady as a choo choo. He'll take you straight to Santa Land."

"But how can I ride him?" exclaimed Billy. "He's almost as small as you."

"Try and see."

Billy straddled the bird and a curious thing happened. Either the airchoo bird

Rose Bowl-bound Michigan leads Big Ten team selections

AP Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Michigan's Rose Bowl-bound Wolverines, led by running back Rob Lytle and flanker Jim Smith, dominated the 1976 All-Big Ten football team selected by The Associated Press.

Smith, a repeater from last year's team, and Lytle were unanimous choices on offense along with running back Scott Dierking of Purdue.

Michigan landed four others on the offensive unit including quarterback Rick Leach, tackle Bill Dufek, center Walt Downing and guard Mark Donahue.

Rounding out the offense were tight end Mike Cobb of Michigan State, wide receiver Scott Yelvington of Northwestern, tackle Chris Ward of Ohio State and guard Connie Zelencik of Purdue. Illinois place kicker Dan Beaver was selected to the team for a second straight year.

While Michigan dominated on offense, cochampion Ohio State's Buckeyes, who will represent the Big Ten in the Orange Bowl, landed five players on the defensive team which included four repeaters from last year and four others who were unanimous choices.

The repeaters were tackle Nick Buomomici of Ohio State, end Blane Smith of Purdue and defensive backs Pete Shaw of Northwestern and Tom Hannon of Michigan State.

Unanimous choices were end Bob Brudzinski of Ohio State, tackle Greg Morton of Michigan and linebackers Calvin O'Neal of Michigan and Scott Studwell of Illinois.

The other three players on the defensive unit—all from Ohio State—were middle guard Aaron Brown, linebacker Tom Cousineau and defensive back Ray Griffin.

Selected as the punter for the second straight season was Ohio State's Tom Skladany.

Cousineau and Leach were the only sophomores to make the team.

Cardinals, Baltimore to meet in classic struggle

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

They say pro football games are won and lost at the line of scrimmage where defense and offense collide in an ultimate test of strength.

If that is true, then Saturday's National Football league battle between the the Baltimore Colts and St. Louis Cardinals should be a classic.

The Colts' defensive unit, affectionately known as the Sack Pack, has decked opposing quarterbacks a league-leading 52 times. But St. Louis' offensive line protects passer Jim Hart tenaciously and has permitted him to be sacked only 15 times all season.

So, it is the old story of the immovable object and the irresistable force. The winner of their rush-line confrontation also probably will be the winner of the game.

In Saturday's other game, Los Angeles entertains Atlanta with the Rams needing a victory to clinch the National Football Conference West title.

Pat Haden has taken over the quarterback job for the Rams and tossed two touchdown passes and ran for another score in last week's 33-14 victory over New Orleans.

In that game, Lawrence McCutcheon rushed for 116 yards, going over the 1,000 mark for the third time. His 4,140 career yards in four seasons is the second highest total in Rams history, trailing only the 5,417 Dick Bass gained in 10 years.

In Sunday's action, Buffalo plays at Miami, Houston is at Cleveland, Kansas City visits Denver, Pittsburgh entertains Tampa Bay, Chicago plays at Seattle, Dallas visits Philadelphia, Detroit plays the New York Giants, Green Bay is at Minnesota, New England is home against New Orleans, San Francisco is at San Diego and Washington plays the Jets at New York.

In Monday night's game, Cincinnati plays at Oakland.

Baltimore has clinched an American Football Conference playoff berth but needs one more victory or a New England loss to wrap up the East Division title. But the Colts' situation is not nearly as serious as the one St. Louis is in. The Cards are tied with Washington in the NFC East, but the Redskins have the edge by virtue of having defeated the Cardinals twice this season. The survivor of that battle is almost certain to get the NFC wild card spot.

The Sack Pack is led by tackle Joe Ehrmann, who has 11½ quarterback dumps to his credit, and ends Fred Cook and John Dutton, with 11 and 10, respectively.

Handling them will be the assignment of the Cards' offensive line, headed by Dan Dierdorf and Conrad Dobler. Occasionally, defenses have charged them with using less than legal tactics in their protection of Hart.

"Sure, it's embarassing when the referee calls a holding penalty and identifies you," said Dierdorf. "But it's more embarassing to turn around and see your man sacking your quarterback."

"I'll do anything I can get away with to protect my quarterback." Dobler said. "This is not a gentleman's game,"

Danny Murtaugh dead at 59

CHESTER, Pa. (AP) — Danny Murtaugh, who pledged to make his fourth baseball retirement his last so he could devote more time to the grandchildren he loved, is dead at age 59.

Murtaugh, who left the Pittsburgh Pirates just two months ago, slipped into a coma and died Thursday night after suffering a stroke two days earlier.

"In my younger years, I don't think I spent enough time with my children," said the sentimental Irishman when he quit in October.

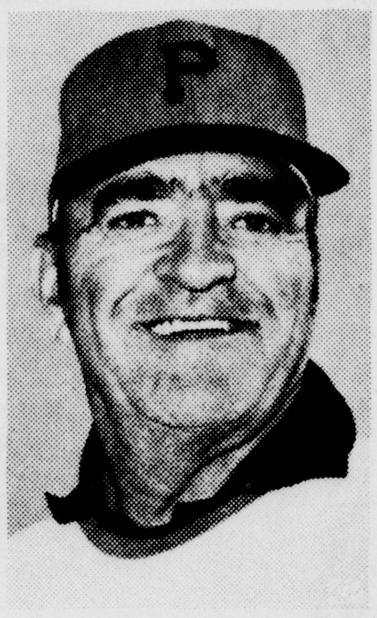

"I'm going to make it up with my grandchildren."

Murtaugh was stricken at his home in nearby Woodlyn Tuesday and taken to Crozer Chester Medical Center. The stroke was considered serious and his condition steadily deteriorated.

He had a 10-year history of heart trouble and his death followed what he said was a season of very bad health.

His friends in baseball mourned the fact that he would not get the chance to fulfill his retirement dreams: scout ballplayers in the warm and easy sun, smell the roses, and play with his grandchildren.

"He was a baseball man," said Cincinnati Reds Manager Sparky Anderson. "He liked it so much he came back to it when he shouldn't have."

DANNY MURTAUGH

Murtaugh is survived by his Kate, a daughter and two sons. His son Tim manages the Pirates' top farm club.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

The Point After

By MARK REA

Football season is finally over. The training, drills, games, and banquets have ended. Miami Trace has the county's fifth gold football safely tucked away in their trophy case.

But, are the 1976 Miami Trace Panthers the best in Fayette County history?

Miami Trace fans will obviously side with the Panthers while fans from Washington C.H. would put their money on the 1973 Blue Lions.

The similarities between the teams are amazing. Both went 10-0 and missed the post-season state playoffs. Both were rated near or at the top of the AP ratings when they had been unranked the year before.

Both teams won a South Central Ohio League gold football without any trouble.

Each team had an extraordinary offensive back. Panther quarterback Art Schlichter passed for 185 yards on his way to becoming the Ohio southeastern district "back of the year."

In 1973, Blue Lion Chuck Wilson rolled up 1,537 yards rushing and scored 184 points on his way to earning the honor as All-Ohio "back of the year."

The respective coaches, Fred Zechman and Maurice Pfeifer, were named southeastern district "coaches of the year" in their perfect seasons.

Both teams completed their season with big wins, the Blue Lions 58-0 over Hillsboro and the Panthers 60-13 over Washington C.H.

One individual had a big scoring game in those last contests. Lion senior Mark Johnson scored 34 points in his final game while Panther senior Rex Coe picked up 36 points in the last game in Trace uniform.

As much as the teams are alike, they are completely different in their winning philosophies. Miami Trace won their games with a high scoring offense. Washington C.H. won their games with a stingy defense.

The Panther offensive machine rolled 523 points this season, an average of over 52 points a game. They churned out 5,274 yards on offense, an average of more than 527 yards every Friday night.

They racked up 246 first downs, over 24 a game, and completed over 60 per cent of their passes, connecting on 106 of 169 passes.

As good as the Trace offense was, the Washington defense equalled it. They allowed only 19 points all year, an average of just less than a safety every game. They weren't scored upon until the third quarter of the eighth game.

They allowed only 704 yards offense against them while posting eight shutouts. They gave up an average of 42 yards rushing and just 28 yards passing per game.

As for great individual performances, the teams can boast a lot of them. Schlichter's passing percentage was a nifty 92-141-3 for 65 per cent and 1,685 yards. He also threw for 16 touchdowns.

Alan Coppock, the Lion quarterback, threw for 11 touchdowns and sported a percentage of 58-100-3 for 58 per cent and 947 yards.

Wilson carried the ball 237 times for 1,537 yards for an average of 6.5 yards a carry. Coe lugged the ball 111 times for Trace, gaining 1,007 yards for an average of nine yards per carry.

Larry Dumford of Washington C.H. led both team in season tackles with 107, followed by Garth Cox with 84 and John Sanderson with 81. For those who have short memories, Cox and Sanderson were the titanic linemen for the Lions in 1973.

All-stater Dennis Combs led the Panthers with 45 individual tackles followed by sophomore Glen Cobb with 39 and Tony Walters with 28.

Junior Bill Hanners of the Panthers led both teams in pass receptions with 40 for 802 yards. Johnson was Washington's leading receiver with 25 grabs for 509 yards. Hanners' average per catch was just over 20 yards while Johnson's was a little more than 21 yards a reception.

The Blue Lions landed four players on the all-state team while the Panthers landed six. Wilson was named to the first team in addition to gaining the back of the year award. Johnson was named to the second team while Sanderson earned a third team berth and Cox gained honorable mention.

Trace had Schlichter, Hanners, and Bill Warnock on the second team, center Sam Grooms on the third team, and Coe and Combs received honorable mention.

The coaches of the teams, as you might expect, are biased in their views of who the better team was. Former Blue Lion head coach Pfeifer said, "When we played them in 1973, they had a sign that said 'computers don't lie.' All I can say is that we finished 15th in the computer (poll) and they finished 18th. So, I guess they were right; computers don't lie."

Pfeifer also stated, "They (Miami Trace) can't make the claim that the reason they finished so low was because they are (Class) AAA. They had just as much of a chance to win the thing as we did." The Lions are classified as a Class AA school.

Panther head boss Zechman said, "Sure, we had a big offense and they did some big things but I think our defense went overlooked. Our defense was underrated the whole season and they only gave up 52 points."

"I think our defense could have held their (Washington's) offense and then our offense would have scored some points," said Zechman.

Pfeifer seemed to think that a game pitting the teams would be something akin to 1974's county struggle which the Panthers took 8-6.

Zechman thought the game would be more of an offensive battle, with the winner scoring about three touchdowns.

Both coaches admit that some of the players they coached in their 10-0 season were some of the best high schools players in Fayette County history.

The reason for all these statistics is so that you can make your own decision as to which is the better team. Certainly no one is in the position to say that the 1976 Panthers were better than the 1973 Blue Lions or vice versa. The arguments would go on forever.

But, if by chance the argument could be settled, members of the 1971 Panthers and 1952 Blue Lions are still around to argue.

Partial blindness forces decision

Class A coach of year resigns after season

By GEORGE STRODE
AP Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — "Hey, don't worry about me," said Denny Price, The Associated Press' Ohio Class A prep football Coach of the Year. "I don't deserve anything. Give the credit to the kids."

Price, only 32, has been forced to resign after a 9-1 season at West Liberty-Salem. A disease that causes partial blindness led to his decision.

"There were times this season when I couldn't even tell which players were ours on the field. I just felt that I'd be cheating the kids and the school if I remained. There's no know cure for the disease," he said.

For the coaching laurels, Price edged Jay Circosta of poll king Woodsfield, Gene Keel of playoff winner West Jefferson, Larry Humbert of Gnadenhuutten Indian Valley South, Bill Maltarich of Dalton, Jerry Widder of Marion Catholic and Morris Gullion of Piketon.

Oak Hill tailback Tim Williams and end Allan Young of Fairport Harbor Harding, the pair accounting for 45 touchdowns this season, are the Ohio Class A Players of the Year.

The selections were made with the recommendations of a statewide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Williams, a 6-foot-2, 170-pound senior, rushed for 2,090 yards, 22 touchdowns and 172 points in 10 games this season. He also completed six of 10 passes, kicked a pair of field goals and played safety.

Young, 5-10 and 170 pounds, was just as impressive in his senior year. He scored 23 touchdowns, 11 on receptions, 11 by rushing and one on a punt return.

Williams heads an impressive first-team all-state backfield.

Quarterback Tom Orosz of Fairport Harbor Harding figured in 23 touchdowns, 16 of them among 1,480 yards passing. He also rushed for 400 more yards.

The other running backs are Wayne Hairston of Summit Station Licking Heights, who piled up a Licking County record 1,627 yards in 10 games, and Gary Leeper of Jewett-Scio, with 1,383 yards.

Young is joined on the offensive line by ends Neal Seymour of Canal Winchester and Tony Sheppard of Newcomerstown, tackles Terry Gifford of Piketon and Chris Shisler of Lewisburg Twin Valley North, guards Tom Reffitt of Arlington and Rolie Devine of West LibertySalem and center Greg Gallas of playoff champion West Jefferson.

Defensive end Ross Shipley of West Jefferson and defensive tackle Tim Zetwick of playoff runnerup Ashtabula St. John lead the first-team defensive unit.

Their mates are end John Theiss of Albany Alexander, tackle Jim Beardsley of Berlin Center Western Reserve, middle guard Greg Hendricks of Fostoria St. Wendelin, linebackers Bruce Fields of Bluffton, Tom Puvogel of West Alexandria Twin Valley South, Mitch Naufel of Sandusky St. Mary's and deep backs Pat Riley of Ironton St. Joseph, Jeff Bumpus of Centerburg and Rick Booth of Newark Catholic.

Psychology helps Bullets

By The Associated Press

Pay attention now: Dick Motta is giving a class in sports psychology.

"The most dangerous thing is a 20-point lead," notes the coach of the Washington Bullets.

Why?

"When you get that far ahead," says Motta, "you have a tendency to let up, and you usually drop down to about eight points. By the time you build a big lead, you have spent yourself."

The lesson was dramatically put across Thursday night when Motta's Bullets had to pull out of a tailspin in the last quarter before posting a 102-90 National Basketball Association victory over the Atlanta Hawks.

Washington led 73-54 in the third quarter before Atlanta chopped the big lead to six points. But then Elvin Hayes helped the Bullets pull away.

In other NBA action, the Golden State Warriors outscored the San Antonio Spurs 124-116 and the Houston Rockets routed the Milwaukee Bucks 137-110.

Jimmy Connors beats Ken Rosewall, 6-2, 6-2

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Jimmy Connors has had little trouble against veteran Ken Rosewall in their recent professional tennis matches, and he easily overcame the Australian veteran in the $320,000 World Championship of Tennis Challenge Cup opening round.

Connors beat the 42-year-old Rosewall Thursday night, 6-2, 6-2 to continue his mastery over the tournament's oldest player and extend his Las Vegas record to 10-0.

Smart Shadow wins

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) I Smart Shadow captured the featured pace mile in the eighth race at Lebanon by two lengths in 2:09.4-5 Thursday night and paid $5.80, $3.40 and $2.40.

Carter margin grows as recount continues

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — With a recount of the presidential election in Ohio 95 per cent complete, President-elect Jimmy Carter appears to be assured of victory over President Ford, probably by a wider margin than was first reported.

Carter has added 1,753 net votes to his unofficial total, increasing his lead to 11,086.

"For practical purposes, it's over," Asst. Secretary of State James Marsh said Thursday. "We're not expecting any significant changes at all."

Marsh said tabulation should be complete by Monday so Secretary of State Ted W. Brown can certify Carter's 25 electors next Wednesday.

But also for practical reasons, Franklin County Republican Chairman Russell Leach said he "didn't have any plans" to call a halt to the recanvass before it is final.

Leach said it would be "impractical to try to get all 25" GOP elector candidates to agree that the recount should stop.

The secretary of state's office has complete reports from 77 counties and partial returns from eight, with three counties — Delaware, Harrison and Richland — still to be heard from.

In line with past trends in which unofficial winners pick up in recounts, Carter has added 1,661 votes while Ford lost 92, for a net change of 1,753 votes.

Meanwhile, an attorney for a loose-knit coalition which has filed a federal lawsuit to overturn the election on fraud charges, still hopes to prevent Carter's electors from taking part in the Dec. 13 meeting of the Electoral College.

Richard Reichel of Massillon said he would meet today with U.S. District Court Judge Joseph P. Kinneary.

Hypothermia danger noted

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Department of Natural Resources has warned outdoorsmen to be wary of hypothermia, which has already killed several sportsmen this season.

Hypothermia is a loss of body heat, usually caused by cold, wind, snow or rain, which causes the body's vital organs to cease functioning. It can occur at temperatures above freezing and, unless reversed, is fatal.

The department said the most recent hypothermia fatalities occurred on Mosquito Creek Reservoir in Trumbull County a week ago, when three duck hunters were dumped into the 34-degree water when their boat capsized. All three died.

"Hunters and fisherman should be aware that dizziness, disorientation, drowsiness and slurred and slow speech are symptoms of hypothermia," said Norv Hall, chief of the department's division of watercraft.

He said sportsmen with one or more of the symptoms should seek a warm shelter immediately and begin drinking hot fluids to warm the body.

Bellbottom trousers may make comeback

WASHINGTON (AP) — There's a glimmer of hope for sailors who long to go back to the Navy's traditional bellbottom trousers, jumper and white hat.

Adm. James L. Holloway III, chief of naval operations, has told the Navy's personnel bureau to take a new look at the uniform question, simmering since the old style was jettisoned a few years ago.

During Holloway's recent swing through the fleet in the Pacific, he heard repeated complaints from sailors about the new uniform of coats, shirts, black ties and peaked caps.

"Wherever he goes, Adm. Holloway gets asked about the possibility of getting back to the old uniform," a Navy source said.

Officials stress the personnel bureau's look is just preliminary to give Holloway information on probable costs of returning to the old uniform or some variation of it, and to determine accurately the extent of interest throughout the fleet in making such a change.

"Holloway wants to make sure it's more than a few guys who talked to him about it," the Navy source said.

A basic objection to the new style uniform, its critics say, is that it is a bother to keep it in presentable condition, particularly aboard smaller ships that lack cleaning and pressing facilities.

Sailors claim they don't have space to hang the new uniforms. The old outfits could be rolled up and stored in sea bags.

Some sailors, along with nostalgic ex-Navy men, say the bell-bottoms and the white hat made a smarter looking uniform.

And there are chief petty officers who complain that the distinction they once enjoyed when wearing coats and peaked caps disappeared when all enlisted men began dressing the same way.

The uniform change was ordered by Adm. Elmo Zumwalt Jr., when he was the Navy's top officer. Announcing his decision in June 1971, Zumwalt said he hoped to "enhance morale and present the concept of one Navy" with a standard uniform for all.

A period of about four years was allowed for a gradual changeover so that sailors would get used to the idea.

Apparently, many of them never did.

The zoomed over cities, across oceans, past mountain peaks and landed finally in a snow blanketed valley.

It was Santa Land!

Billy climbed off the airchoo bird's back and ran as fast as he could towards Santa's little red house. As he ran he held his wooden sword ready in case Goko the giant was already there.

Seek to vacate sex conviction

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — An attorney has filed a petition in federal court that seeks to vacate defeated Rep. Allan T. Howe's sex solicitation conviction.

Lawyer Dean Mitchell said in the petition filed Thursday that pretrial publicity made it impossible for the Utah Democrat to receive a fair trial. The petition argues that the District Court judge who presided at Howe's second trial refused to sequester the jury or protect it from publicity.

Howe, arrested in Salt Lake City's red light district last June 12 and accused of trying to buy sex from two police decoy prostitutes, was convicted in a city court trial and appealed to District Court. A jury found him guilty again in a second trial, which began Aug. 23.

Howe lost to Republican Dan Marriott in the Nov. 2 election.
